Neal, Warwick Rodwell, 2022-09-15 Canterbury Cathedral possesses a unique marble mosaic pavement dating from the early twelfth century which has long intrigued scholars and been the subject of speculation and debate It forms part of the floor of the Trinity chapel adjacent to the site where the shrine of St Thomas Becket stood prior to the Reformation Since the mosaic is older than the chapel itself and partly destroyed a pavement of figurative roundels laid c 1215 it must have been moved here from elsewhere in the cathedral This volume explores the history and archaeology of the Trinity chapel the pavement and the physical remains of the cult of Becket based largely on hitherto unrecorded and unpublished evidence In the early twelfth century Archbishop Anselm rebuilt the eastern arm of the cathedral introducing architectural elements from his native Italy and these included a magnificent mosaic pavement composed of the most expensive marbles which lay in front of the high altar In 1170 Archbishop Becket was murdered in the cathedral and his body rested overnight on the pavement before being buried in the crypt Thomas was immediately revered as a martyr and in 1173 was canonized by the pope a simple shrine was erected over his tomb In the following year a fire arson destroyed the eastern arm of the cathedral precipitating the construction of the present Trinity and Corona chapels wherein St Thomas s remains were enshrined After decades of delay and political strife the enshrinement took place in 1220 in the presence of Henry III The shrine comprised a great marble table supported on six clusters of columns On top of the table was a marble sarcophagus containing the saint s body in an iron bound timber coffin over which stood the sumptuous feretory a gabled timber roof plated with sheets of gold and adorned with jewels East of the shrine lies the small Corona chapel in which a fragment of Becket s skull was separately encased in a head shrine and to the west a large area was paved with forty eight figurative stone roundels created by French artisans All around stained glass windows display the early miracles of Becket The layout of the Trinity chapel underwent transmutations first around 1230 when the mosaic pavement was taken up from the old presbytery reduced in size and relaid in front of Becket's shrine where it is today. Second, the chapel was reordered in c. 1290 when the podium carrying the shrine was enlarged and the paving around it reconfigured. Medieval tombs were now being installed in the chapels including those of the Black Prince and Henry IV. The end came in 1538 when Henry VIII ordered the thorough destruction of Becket's shrines but a great deal of archaeological evidence remained in the floors, walls, and a few surviving fragments of the shrines, all now recorded and discussed in this volume for the first time.

Official Descriptive and Illustrated Catalogue Great Exhibition (1851, London), 1851 Arts & Decoration, 1927 Scientific American, 1894 Bulletin of the New York Public Library New York Public Library, 1914 Includes its Report 1896-1945 The American Architect, 1912 The Architectural Review, 1913 Roman Strigillated Sarcophagi Janet Huskinson, 2015-11-05 This is the first full study of Roman strigillated sarcophagi which are the largest group of decorated marble sarcophagi to survive in the city of Rome. Characterized by panels of carved fluting (hence the description strigillated after the curved strigil used by Roman bathers to scrape off oil) and limited figure scenes, they were produced from the mid-second to the early fifth century AD and thus cover a critical period in Rome from empire to early Christianity. Roman Strigillated Sarcophagi focuses on their rich potential as an historical source for exploring the social and cultural life of the city in the later empire. The first part of the volume examines aspects of their manufacture, use, and viewing, emphasizing distinctive features. The second part looks at the figured representations carved on the sarcophagi and at their social significance and creativity, concentrating on how their various arrangements allowed viewers to develop their own interpretations. The subjects represented by the figures and the flexibility with which they might be read provide invaluable insights into how Romans thought about life and death during these changing times. The final part of the volume surveys how later societies responded to Roman strigillated sarcophagi. From as early as the fifth century AD, their distinctive decoration and allusions to the Roman past made them especially attractive for reuse in particular contemporary contexts, notably for elite burials and the decoration of prominent buildings. The motif of curved fluting was also adopted and adapted in decorated neo-classical memorials to Captain Cook, Napoleon's sister-in-law, Christine Boyer, and Penelope Boothby, and its use continues into this century, well over one and a half millennia since it first decorated Roman sarcophagi.

Astorino, 2018-12-20 A Pencil in God's Hands: The Story of the Only American Architect to Design a Building in the Vatican By Louis D. Astorino The Chapel of the Holy Spirit is within the Vatican walls and is built adjacent to the Domus Sanctae Marthae, a hotel for visiting clergy. In 1993 Pope John Paul II made the decision to have a hotel and chapel constructed at the Vatican in order to accommodate visiting clergy year-round but most especially during a Papal Conclave when cardinals housed at the Vatican Museum where they slept on cots in the halls with bedpans by their side. The Pope was determined to bring the accommodations for the Conclave into the twenty-first century. With no vacant land within the Vatican walls, the Pope made the decision to have an older building directly across from St Peter's Cathedral demolished for the new structures The location of the new hotel and chapel would allow the cardinals to attend Mass in sequester then go directly through St Peter's Basilica and into the Sistine Chapel to vote Today that chapel The Chapel of the Holy Spirit is used for the more than sporadic Conclave Pope Francis celebrates daily Mass there and also uses it for gatherings and audiences with groups of visiting clergy the Swiss Guard and the families with special needs children As you read the story of my journey from Pittsburgh to the Vatican pencil sketch to blueprint construction to dedication I hope you will share in the inspiration awe and strengthening of faith that I experienced during this remarkable journey In order to put this story in context let us travel back in time Official Descriptive and Illustrated Catalogue of the Great Exhibition of the Works of Industry of All Nations, 1851 Weltausstellung, 1851 Architectures of Chance Yeoryia Manolopoulou, 2017-03-02 Architectural discourse and practice are dominated by a false dichotomy between design and chance and governed by the belief that the architect's role is to defend against the indeterminate In Architectures of Chance Yeoryia Manolopoulou challenges this position arguing for the need to develop a more creative understanding of chance as aesthetic experience and critical method and as a design practice in its own right Examining the role of experimental chance across film psychoanalysis philosophy fine art and performance this is the first book to comprehensively discuss the idea of chance in architecture and bring a rich array of innovative practices of chance to the attention of architects Wide ranging and through a symbiotic interplay of drawing and text Architectures of Chance makes illuminating reading for those interested in the process and experience of design and the poetics and ethics of chance and space in the overlapping fields of architecture and the aleatoric arts Granite Marble & Bronze, 1919 Design & Analysis Liu Cengdian, Roy W.
