Bruno Maderna Rossana Dalmonte, Mario Baroni, 2022-06-22 Bruno Maderna was one of the most influential composers in the twentieth century He was the eldest of the group of Italian composers born in the 1920s along with Berio Nono Donatoni and others who began their career shortly before the second World War and were able to exploit the opportunities offered by the new world that emerged in the post war years Maderna s story is quite unique He rose to fame early in life as a child prodigy and his exceptional talent was soon noticed by Gian Francesco Malipiero who stimulated his interest in ancient music a passion that remained constant even when the European avant garde insisted that new music should start from year zero After first approaching classic dodecaphony his musical style then tended toward total serialism and open form In his last years he developed a particular interest for the theater Satyricon was born in Tanglewood in a short version and later achieved notable success worldwide His work as a conductor made him particularly sensitive to the reaction of the public leading him to carefully calibrate his approach to composition without being swayed by fashionable ideals or philosophies Despite his warm and outgoing nature Maderna rarely expressed his personal views in writing or in interviews Many of the biographical details given here are taken from his correspondence and from reports of his travels and engagements across the world which took him as far as the United States Iran South America and Japan Code of

Diagnosis: Philosophical and Medical Perspectives N. Laor,J. Agassi,2012-12-06

1 GENERAL The term diagnostics refers to the general theory of diagnosis not to the study of specific diagnoses but to their general framework It borrows from different sciences and from different philosophies Traditionally the general framework of diagnostics was not distinguished from the framework of medicine It was not taught in special courses in any systematic way it was not accorded special attention students absorbed it intuitively There is almost no comprehensive study of diagnostics The instruction in diagnosis provided in medical schools is exclusively specific Clinical instruction includes in addition to vital background information such as anatomy and physiology specific instruction in nosology the theory and classification of diseases and this includes information on diagnoses and prognoses of diverse diseases What is the cause of the neglect of diagnostics and of its integrated teaching The main cause may be the prevalence of the view of diagnostics as part and parcel of nosology In this book nosology is taken as a given autonomous field of study which invites almost no comments we shall freely borrow from it a few important general theses and a few examples We attempt to integrate here three studies ll of the way nosology is used in the diagnostic process of the diagnostic process as a branch of applied ethics of the diagnostic process as a branch of social science and social technology
