Academic Libraries and Collaborative Research Services Carrie Forbes, 2022-08-16 Higher education institutions in the United States and across the globe are realizing the importance of enabling internal and external collaborative work e g interdisciplinary research and community partnerships In recent years researchers have documented the benefits of organizational collaboration for research including greater efficiency effectiveness and enhanced research reputation In addition accreditors foundations business and government agencies have been espousing the value of collaboration for knowledge creation and research and improved organizational functioning As a result of both the external pressures and the known benefits many forms of internal and external research collaborations have begun to emerge in higher education At the heart of this change academic libraries who have long been models for collaborative work are increasingly participating in the research process by providing a widening range of research services beyond traditional reference services Innovative library services in areas such as bibliometric analysis research data management and data repositories are evolving in response to changes in education funding and policies These funding and policy changes have also coincided with technological developments to create opportunities for academic librarians to find new roles within their institutions and the research community There is a growing body of literature examining these changing academic library roles but few volumes have concentrated on how the nature of collaborative work in libraries is helping to reshape institutional research practices Academic Libraries and Collaborative Research Services fills that void by providing academic librarians and administrators with case studies and guidance on how academic libraries are establishing their place in this new collaborative research arena in the areas of emerging liaison roles research data services open access and scholarly publishing and professional development programming The book will also be useful to higher education administrators and institutional research officers looking for information on how to partner with libraries to increase the effectiveness of collaborative research

Science Libraries in the Self

Service Age Alvin Hutchinson, 2018-11-27 Science Libraries in the Self Service Age Developing New Services Targeting New Users suggests ways in which libraries can remain relevant to their institution This book describes the myriad of new services and user communities which science librarians have recently incorporated into their routines Where applicable the book focuses on both researcher needs and the simple economics that emphasize the need for new service development Science librarians will have to adapt to changing behaviors and needs if they want to remain a part of their organization's future As this trend has hastened science librarians to develop new services many of them aimed at audiences or user groups which had not typically used the library this book provides timely tactics on which to build a cohesive plan Provides a list of practical targeted services which science librarians can implement Presents unified topics previously only dealt with separately data management services scholarly communication digital preservation etc Considers economic and resource issues in developing new services Written by an experienced librarian at a global institution EDI and Data Networking in the Public Sector Kim Viborg Andersen, 1997-11-30 When researching teaching or working with information systems in the public sector one is left with few or often no textbooks that provide useful case studies or surveys on the implementation and effects of integrating information technologies in the organizations operations This is surprising since in most first world countries the public sector consumes a substantial part of the gross national product Even more astonishing is the vast amount of financial and organizational resources that are spent developing and implementing various information systems We decided to write this book to provide information for those studying information systems at business schools information and computer departments at colleges universities and for those working hands on with EDI and data networking in public administration Thus our primary target groups for this book are professionals training MA courses computer science MBA MP A and political science EDI has been seen as a means to wire the various policy areas in the public sector Those included are not limited strictly to the public organizations but extend to their trade partners Also government has sought ways to stimulate the usage of EDI in the private sector beyond those transactions involving direct communication with the public sector In this book we have contributors from eight countries and a total of 14 chapters reporting on issues of importance when developing and implementing EDI when government wants to stimulate the diffusion of EDI in society and when organizations want to address the impact of their investments in ED Computer-Assisted Research in the Humanities Joseph Raben, 2014-05-18 Computer Assisted Research in the Humanities describes various computer assisted research in the humanities and related social sciences It is a compendium of data collected between November 1966 and May 1972 and published in Computer and the Humanities The book begins with an analysis of language teaching texts including the DOVACK system a program used for remedial reading instruction It then discusses the objectives types of computer used and status of the Bibliographic On line Display BOLD semiotic systems augmented human intellect program automatic indexing and similar research The remaining chapters present computer assisted research on language and literature philosophy social sciences and visual arts Students who seek a single reference work for computer assisted research in the humanities will find this book useful Research in Education, 1973 Doing Business on the Internet Fay Sudweeks, Celia T. Romm, 2012-12-06

FAY SUDWEEKS AND CELIA ROMM At the turn of the twenty first century global communication is changing the fabric of society at a rate never experienced before The Internet in particular has redrawn the map of global economy To be competitive in today's marketplace companies need to expand commercial activities beyond national borders The global network of electronic infrastructure has played a significant role in this expansion but the technology itself is not the factor driving the business revolution The changes are driven by the interaction of information technology and customer demand Customers are not only adapting to new technologies they are demanding more and more global competition Electronic commerce therefore is arguably the most important economic trend of our time Its presence on the Internet in particular is becoming crucial to the effective functioning of organisations especially in a world where companies need to deal with suppliers customers partners and their own units distributed across the world A global business industry created by the Internet is no longer a projected vision of technocrats it is a reality The Internet is already playing a significant role in determining corporate strategy and in creating values State, 1990 Open Access and the Future of Scholarly Communication Kevin L. Smith, Katherine A. Dickson, 2016-10-05

It is impossible to imagine the future of academic libraries without an extensive consideration of open access the removal of price and permission barriers from scholarly research online As textbook and journal subscription prices continue to rise improvements in technology make online dissemination of scholarship less expensive and faculty recognize the practical and philosophical appeal of making their work available to wider audiences As a consequence libraries have begun to consider a wide variety of open access flavors and business models These new possibilities have significant impact on both library services and collection policies and the call for new skills within library staffing Volume 9 of the series Creating the 21st Century Academic Library is the first of two addressing the topic of open access in academic libraries and focuses on policy and infrastructure for libraries that wish to provide leadership on their campus in the transition to more open forms of scholarship Chapters in the book discuss how to make the case for open access on campus as well as the political and policy implications of libraries that themselves want to become publishing entities Infrastructure issues are also addressed including metadata standards and research management services Also considered here is how interlibrary loan preservation and the library's role in providing textbooks support the concept of open access It is hoped that this volume and the series in general will be a valuable and exciting addition to the discussions and planning surrounding the future directions services and careers in the 21st century academic library Civil Engineering and Urban Research, Volume 1 Hazem Samih Mohamed, Jinfang Hou, 2023-03-28
