Au Naturel Stephen L. Harp, 2014-05-12 Each year in France approximately 1.5 million people practice naturisme or naturism an activity more commonly referred to as nudism Because of France's unique tolerance for public nudity the country also hosts hundreds of thousands of nudists from other European nations an influx that has contributed to the most extensive infrastructure for nude tourism in the world In Au Naturel historian Stephen L Harp explores how the evolution of European tourism encouraged public nudity in France connecting this cultural shift with important changes in both individual behaviors and collective understandings of the body morality and sexuality Harp's study the first in depth historical analysis of nudism in France challenges widespread assumptions that sexual liberation freed people from repression a process ostensibly reflected in the growing number of people practicing public nudity Instead he contends naturism gained social acceptance because of the bodily control required to participate in it New social codes emerged governing appropriate nudist behavior including where one might look how to avoid sexual excitation what to wear when cold and whether even the most modest displays of affection including hand holding and pecks on the cheek were permissible between couples Beginning his study in 1927 when naturist doctors first advocated nudism in France as part of air water and sun cures Harp focuses on the country's three earliest and largest nudist centers the le du Levant in the Var Montalivet in the Gironde and the Cap d'Agde in Hérault These places emerged as thriving tourist destinations Harp shows because the municipalities by paradoxically reinterpreting indecency as a way to foster European tourism to France worked to make public nudity more acceptable Using the French naturist movement as a lens for examining the evolving notions of the body and sexuality in twentieth century Europe Harp reveals how local practices served as agents of national change

Think Big with Think Alouds Molly Ness, 2017-07-13 I'm guessing that those two are planning a surprise The author keeps mentioning the storm because she wants us to think that the character's upset. Wait, yikes! I gotta go back and reread because I'm not getting this part. These are the flickering thoughts of a strategic reader. If only we could bottle all these mental moves and pour them into the minds of our students, then readers' achievement would grow exponentially. In Think Big With Think Alouds, Molly Ness delivers a process that comes close to bottling that magic. Molly spent a year researching teachers' think alouds, and she uses these findings to help you know just what to do. The big time saver: You focus on just these five strategies: asking questions, making inferences, synthesizing, understanding the author's purpose, and monitoring and clarifying. Select the one or two strategies that align to your text and get ready with a stack of sticky notes. Grab a pencil, and you are on your way to dynamic lessons using Molly's three-step planning process. Read Once: Go wild, putting a flurry of sticky notes on spots that strike you. Read Twice: Whittle your notes down to the juiciest stopping points. Read Three Times: Jot down what you will say, so there's no need to wing it in front of the kids. Other practical tools include more than 20 ready-made think aloud scripts for favorite texts by Sandra Cisneros, Seymour Simon, Shel Silverstein, and many others to use for think alouds for fiction, informational text, and poetry. Fun small group and partner activities to gradually transfer comprehension strategies to your students. Downloads on the companion website including spinner and dice templates, planning forms, and think aloud scripts. Molly Ness is an associate professor at Fordham University's Graduate School of Education. She graduated Phi Beta Kappa from Johns Hopkins University and earned her PhD in reading education from the University of Virginia. A former Teach For America corps member, she is an experienced classroom teacher and reading clinician. Her numerous books and articles focus on reading comprehension, the instructional decisions of teachers, and the assessment and diagnosis of struggling readers.

Winging it Susan Schmidt, 1992. The house where Vanessa Redgrave lived during the seventies was just around the corner from the Ravenscourt Park tube station. She had left no distinguishing marks behind, so one just had to know. Robert could imagine her organising her Trotskyite activities in the mornings, memorising her Chekhov in the afternoons, leaving the door unlocked when she left for the theatre. What I have belongs to the people. Like pilgrims to the shrine of culture, come three Americans: Robert, Jesse, and Vera, in love with London and famous Londoners. Emotionally hurt survivors of the 1960s, they have tried to make their lives immune from the pains and pleasures of desire. Into this strategy of damage limitation enters Jeremy, an ingenuish Englishman whose powers of seduction match his unerring ability to judge. As each member of the trio in turn becomes the object of Jeremy's affections, their long-standing commitment to love and peace is threatened. Part Henry James, part Armistead Maupin, Winging It celebrates the triumph of the unfashionable value of friendship in an age when fashion is everything.

Not in Newbury Mary Scott, 1992. Mary Scott is an adventurous and challenging writer whose portraits of London life are both precise and mordant, a rare combination. Jim Crace. Alice, an independent woman of the 90s, has a way with words. Like any angst-ridden speaker, she feels trapped by the tyranny of their meanings. Her therapeutic solution is to compile her own dictionary; now she will be able to make words mean what she wants. This everyday tale of bankrupt relationships and lonely hearts marries Wittgenstein with Mills and Boon it suggests that if you can't get your woman then at least you should be accurate in your disdain In a book that is both brittly funny and profound Mary Scott confirms her unerring ability to capture the semantics of our times Mary Scott's first book was the much praised short story collection Nudists May Be Encountered She now lives in Devon

Transmission Atima Srivastava,1992 A television researcher's friendship with a young couple who have both contracted AIDS is the focus of this novel which attempts to tackle such controversial issues as an individual's privacy and the behaviour of those who have been diagnosed HIV positive Hanging by Her Teeth Bonnie Greer,1994 After taking up every cause from the Black Lesbians Collective to the Black Panthers a black woman settles down to teach literature in England Soon however she finds another cause locating her father a mission which takes her to Paris and Amsterdam A first novel

Sex and the City Marsha Rowe,1989 Stories by Luisa Valenzuela Gary Indiana Lynne Tillman Leslie Dick Alison Fell and others A collection as sharp edged and demanding as urban life in which twenty five stories fathom the blistering dynamics of love and lust Publishers Weekly

The Laughter of Heroes Jonathan Neale,1993 In this blackly comic novel about AIDS three friends attempt to meet the wishes of John a young man who is dying Before he dies John wants to go to a Himalayan monastery chant mantras and commune with the void but his friends have other ideas they decide to fulfill one of his boyhood dreams and take him to Disneyworld Demonstrates that Jonathan Neale is a born storyteller with a rare gift for language Wisconsin Bookwatch
