Introduction

- Sleeve gastrectomy (SG) results in successful weight loss in the majority of patients [1]. Weight loss outcomes do vary, however, and factors influencing the variability are not well understood.
- Obese individuals have a metabolomic fingerprint that is distinct from normal weight individuals. Alterations in metabolism following bariatric surgery have been identified in previous studies [2]. Thus, changes in metabolism and metabolic pathways following SG may be associated with weight loss outcomes.
- We hypothesized that there would be an association between post-operative metabolomic profiles and weight loss outcomes.

Aims and Objectives

- Evaluate whether an individual's baseline metabolomic correlates with weight loss outcomes following sleeve gastrectomy
- Evaluate whether metabolomic biomarkers correlate with weight loss outcomes following sleeve gastrectomy

Methods

- This prospective study evaluated the metabolomic profile of feces and serum prior to SG and three months post-SG, along with weight loss outcomes at three months post-SG in 45 adult patients with obesity.
- Serum and fecal samples were quantitatively profiled using a combination of nuclear magnetic resonance (7H NMR) and targeted mass spectrometry coupled with liquid chromatography (LC-MS/MS) (AbsoluteQX P100) at Beaumont, Beaumont, MS.
- Participants were divided into tertiles based on percent total weight loss (%TWL) at three months post-SG.

Results

- Pre-operative BMI was 40.2 ± 7.2 kg/m², age was 40.2 ± 10.2 years, and 69% were female.
- %TWL for the highest versus the lowest weight loss tertiles (T3 vs T1) at three months post-SG was $17.6 \pm 1.2\%$ and $11.1 \pm 0.8\%$, $p=0.001$.
- Baseline fecal and serum metabolomics did not significantly differ between groups.
- Patients with successful weight loss (T3) at three months, when compared to all patients at baseline, were found to have significant alterations in fecal glycolysis acid (GA) metabolism, fucose and tyrosine metabolism, and bile acid biosynthesis ($p<0.001$) (Fig 1).
- Compared to all patients at baseline, patients with poor post-operative weight loss (T1) at three months had significant alterations in fecal metabolism related to porphyrin metabolism, sterol metabolism, and bile acid biosynthesis ($p<0.001$), but not AA metabolism.

Figure 1. Alterations in fecal metabolites at three-months post-sleeve gastrectomy. Lowest weight loss tertile (T1) and highest weight loss tertile (T3) versus all participants at baseline.

Conclusions

- Studies have examined alterations in post-surgical metabolomics in bariatric patients, but this is the first to evaluate weight-loss outcome-specific differences in fecal metabolites.
- We found that significant alterations in fecal AA metabolism correlates with increased weight loss, while significant alterations in porphyrin metabolism correlates with poor weight loss. AA metabolites have been linked to the pathophysiology of obesity and the initiation and resolution of inflammation. Disorders of porphyrin metabolism have been associated with insulin resistance and metabolic syndrome.
- Further research on pre-operative and post-SG metabolomics could lead to potential targets for post-operative intervention to enhance weight loss outcomes.
