Out of the Study and Into the Field Robert Parkin, Anne de Sales, 2010-06-01 Outside France French anthropology is conventionally seen as being dominated by grand theory produced by writers who have done little or no fieldwork themselves and who may not even count as anthropologists in terms of the institutional structures of French academia This applies to figures from Durkheim to Derrida Mauss to Foucault though there are partial exceptions such as Lévi Strauss and Bourdieu It has led to a contrast being made especially perhaps in the Anglo Saxon world between French theory relying on rational inference and British empiricism based on induction and generally skeptical of theory While there are contrasts between the two traditions this is essentially a false view It is this aspect of French anthropology that this collection addresses in the belief that the neglect of many of these figures outside France is seriously distorting our view of the French tradition of anthropology overall At the same time the collection will provide a positive view of the French tradition of ethnography stressing its combination of technical competence and the sympathies of its practitioners for its various ethnographic subjects Nation-Building in Indian Anthropology Abhijit Guha,2022-10-06 Researches on the history of anthropological studies in India unlike in western countries has not yet been an established tradition despite the fact that courses on the growth and development of anthropology in India are being taught at the graduate and postgraduate levels in the Indian universities and are strongly recommended by the University Grants Commission Indian anthropologists however in the early decades after the independence made inspiring and solid research contributions on the major problems encountered by the new nation which has been described and analysed in detail in this book These problems include rehabilitation of refugees after the 1947 Partition and displacement of people from their homes and land caused by the big dams industrialization and famines This book result of years of painstaking research by the author critically reviews the existing works and their gaps in the history of Indian anthropology and makes a new and valuable addition in the field of the history of academic disciplines in the context of nation building It should be read not only as a text by the students of anthropology and sociology but also as a reference work for researchers interested in the history of social sciences and development studies in India Cold War Anthropology David H. Picturing Culture Jay Ruby,2000-08-15 Here Jay Ruby a founder of visual anthropology distills his thirty year exploration of the relationship of film and anthropology Spurred by a conviction that the ideal of an anthropological cinema has not even remotely begun to be realized Ruby argues that ethnographic filmmakers should generate a set of critical standards analogous to those for written ethnographies Cinematic artistry and the desire to entertain he argues can eclipse the original intention which is to provide an anthropological representation of the subjects The book begins with analyses of key filmmakers Robert Flaherty Robert Garner and Tim Asch who have striven to generate profound statements about human behavior on film Ruby then discusses the idea of research film Eric Michaels and indigenous media the ethics of representation the nature of ethnography anthropological knowledge and film and lays the groundwork for a critical approach to the field that borrows selectively from film communication media and cultural studies Witty and original yet intensely theoretical this collection is a major contribution to the field of visual anthropology

Becoming an Anthropologist Gerald Mars, 2015-10-05 Mars graphic and often vivid narrative can be read simply as the anecdotal memoirs of an anthropologist The experiences he recounts are sometimes hilarious touch occasionally on the dangerous and are always sensitively and expertly explored But for those who want to know more the book's expansive footnotes and references to key sources also offer a stimulating introduction to social anthropology its theories and its methods Mars begins by describing his childhood life in a tightly structured working class community during World War Two He then contrasts this with an account of the hidden underlife of an entrepreneurial crime prone seaside resort Blackpool where he worked as a spieler barker Two years experience of National Service provides an account of the social organisation of the RAF followed by discussion of aspects of the organisation of Cambridge University What follows then is a lifetime spent living and working in different cultures around the world The results are continual insights gained by comparison and contrasts that illuminate aspects not only of other cultures but also of our own
