Madison's Battery Workers, 1934-1952 Robert H. Zieger, 1977 Rebuilding the Pulp and Paper Workers Union
Robert H. Zieger, 2004-11 Winner of the Philip Taft Labor History Award New York State School of Industrial and Labor Relations at Cornell University This study of the pulp and paper workers union helps explain the AFL's often limited response to worker militancy in the 1930s as well as the more institutionalized moderation that emerged from the labor upsurge Zieger sympathetically explains the union's limited goals but steady achievements i.e. raising wages narrowing differentials and organizing blacks women and ethnically diverse workers without resorting to strikes Labor Literature, 1977

Tied to the Great Packing Machine Wilson J. Warren, 2009-11 Ambitious in its historical scope and its broad range of topics Tied to the Great Packing Machine tells the dramatic story of meatpacking's enormous effects on the economics culture and environment of the Midwest over the past century and a half Wilson Warren situates the history of the industry in both its urban and its rural settings moving from the huge stockyards of Chicago and Kansas City to today's smaller meatpacking communities and thus presents a complete portrayal of meatpacking's place within the larger agro industrial landscape Writing from the vantage point of twenty five years of extensive research Warren analyzes the evolution of the packing industry from its early period dominated by the big terminal markets through the development of new marketing and technical innovations that transformed the ways animals were gathered slaughtered and processed and the final products were distributed In addition he concentrates on such cultural impacts as ethnic and racial variations labor unions gender issues and changes in Americans attitudes toward the ethics of animal slaughter and patterns of meat consumption and such environmental problems as site point pollution and microbe contamination ending with a stimulating discussion of the future of American meatpacking Providing an excellent and well referenced analysis within a regional and temporal framework that ensures a fresh perspective Tied to the Great Packing Machine is a dynamic narrative that contributes to a fuller understanding of the historical context and contemporary concerns of an extremely important industry
