Templates in Chemistry III Peter Broekmann, Christoph A. Schalley, Karl Heinz Dötz, 2009-01-30 The first two volumes in this Templates in Chemistry series have focused on templates that control solution phase reactions Among the templates discussed in these two volumes were convex and concave templates that mediate the formation of macrocyclic molecules and mechanically bound molecules with their intriguing intertwined topology Also three dimensional templates that are used to imprint polymers and that organize compounds in the solid state for predestined reactions have been included in the earlier volumes In the present volume we extend the template topology to surfaces that act as matrices for the controlled growth of two dimensional arrays Naturally the typical methods for the characterization of surfaces such as scanning probe microscopy are prominently represented in this volume Different lateral interactions such as coordinative bonds or hydrogen bonding play a major role in assembling the 2D networks on surfaces in addition to the interaction of the samples with the underlying substrates Many phenomena that are also encountered in solution can be directly visualized on surfaces Reversible self assembly processes lead to the formation of large structures through multiple recognition of small building blocks and cul nate in the engineering of crystals in two dimensions Self sorting processes drive the formation of highly ordered arrays through the geometric t of the available components Either the surface itself is the template for example when clusters grow on metal oxide lms or colloidal templates control the formationof macroporousnetworksonthe substrate This volume highlightsa selection of actual complementary aspects of s facetemplates Webelievethatthescopeandthevarietyoftopicscoveredinthis volume will attract readers fromdifferent communities such as supramole larchemistry materialsciences surfacechemistry surfacephysicsandsurface technologyandwehopetheywillenjoythisnewvolumeonTemplatesinCh istry

Electrochemistry of N4 Macrocyclic Metal Complexes Jose H. Zagal,Fethi Bedioui,2016-05-03 This new edition describes the state of the art regarding metal complexes of N4 ligands such as porphyrins and phthalocyanines Volume 2 focuses on the electro assisted use of N4 complexes as biomimetic models for studying several biological redox processes It focuses on molecular oxygen transport and catalytic activation to mimic monooxygenase enzymes of the cytochrome P450 in particular It also examines N4 complexes use as catalysts for the oxidative degradation of various types of pollutants organo halides for example and residual wastes The remarkable activity of these complexes towards a large number of significantly relevant biological compounds makes them excellent candidates as electrode modifiers for electrochemical sensing This volume also discusses applications of N4 Macrocyclic Metal Complexes to photoelectrochemistry and photocatalysis and concludes with an exciting section on Electrosynthesis of N4

Trace Metals in Aquatic Systems Robert P. Mason,2013-05-13 This book provides a detailed examination of the concentration form and cycling of trace metals and metalloids through the aquatic biosphere and has sections dealing with the atmosphere the ocean lakes and rivers It discusses exchanges at the water interface air water and sediment water and the major drivers of the cycling concentration and form of trace metals in aquatic systems The initial chapters focus on the fundamental principles and modelling approaches needed to understand metal concentration speciation and fate in the aquatic environment while the later chapters focus on specific environments with case studies and research highlights Specific examples deal with metals that are of particular scientific interest such as mercury iron arsenic and zinc and the book deals with both pollutant and required nutrient metals and metalloids The underlying chemical principles controlling toxicity and bioavailability of these elements to microorganisms and to the aquatic food chain are also discussed Readership Graduate students studying environmental chemistry and related topics as well as scientists and managers interested in the cycling of trace substances in aqueous systems Additional resources for this book can be found at www.wiley.com/go/mason/tracemetals
