York City needed to expand its water supply engineers helped direct the city toward the Catskills claiming that the mountains offered the purest and most cost effective waters By the 1960s New York had created the great reservoir and aqueduct system in the mountains that now supplies the city with 90 percent of its water The Catskills also served as a critical space in which the nation's ideas about nature evolved Stradling describes the great influence writers and artists had upon urban residents especially the painters of the Hudson River School whose ideal landscapes created expectations about how rural America should appear By the mid 1800s urban residents had turned the Catskills into an important vacation ground and by the late 1800s the Catskills had become one of the premiere resort regions in the nation In the mid twentieth century the older Catskill resort region was in steep decline but the Jewish Borscht Belt in the southern Catskills was thriving The automobile revitalized mountain tourism and residence and increased the threat of suburbanization of the historic landscape Throughout each of these significant incarnations urban and rural residents worked in a rough collaboration though not without conflict to reshape the mountains and American ideas about rural landscapes and nature The Grove

movements forge extensive nonprofit marketing systems and feminize new occupations From Knowledge to Narrative

Lisa C. Roberts, 1997-06-17 From Knowledge to Narrative shows that museum educators professionals responsible for making collections intelligible to viewers have become central figures in shaping exhibits Challenging the traditional scholarly presentation of objects educators argue that rather than transmitting knowledge museums displays should construct narratives that are determined as much by what is meaningful to visitors as by what curators intend Lisa C Roberts discusses museum education in relation to entertainment as a tool of empowerment as a shaper of experience and as an ethical responsibility The book argues for an expanded role for museum education based less on explaining objects than on interpreting narratives
