The Climates and Baths of Great Britain: The climates of the south of England, and the chief medicinal springs of Great Britain, 1895 Roman Britain Felicity Hebditch, 2003. Providing an insight into the history of the British Isles, this series is designed specifically to meet the demands of children ages 7-12. This title covers life in Roman Britain and is illustrated with photographs, maps and diagrams.

The Climates and Baths of Great Britain: Being the Report of a Committee of the Royal Medical and Chirurgical Society of London, 1895 Late Roman Towns in Britain Adam Rogers, 2011-03-28. In this book Adam Rogers examines the late Roman phases of towns in Britain. Critically analysing the archaeological notion of decline, he focuses on public buildings which played an important role, administrative and symbolic, within urban complexes. Arguing against the interpretation that many of these monumental civic buildings were in decline or abandoned in the later Roman period, he demonstrates that they remained purposeful spaces and important centres of urban life. Through a detailed assessment of the archaeology of late Roman towns, this book argues that the archaeological framework of decline does not permit an adequate and comprehensive understanding of the towns during this period. Moving beyond the idea of decline, this book emphasises a longer term perspective for understanding the importance of towns in the later Roman period. Archaeology Hotspot

Great Britain Donald Henson, 2015-03-12. The Archaeology Hotspots series offers reader-friendly and engaging narratives of the archaeology in particular countries. Written by archaeological experts with a general reader in mind, each book in the series focuses on what has been found and by whom, what the controversies and scandals have been, ongoing projects and how it all fits into a broader view of the history of the country. In Archaeology Hotspot Great Britain, expert Donald Henson first chronicles the deep archaeology of a long-settled region including England, Wales and Scotland, then explores both the famously ancient finds, cave art at Creswell Crags, Stonehenge and more recent and iconic historic sites and monuments such as Westminster Abbey and Ironbridge Gorge. He profiles the often larger-than-life personalities and the previously marginalized women who have contributed to British archaeology; the controversies influencing how we see the past are also highlighted. Henson considers London's position in the antiquities trade and the safeguarding of heritage sites. As a whole, the book tells a fascinating story of Great Britain's history, culture, national heritage and ongoing role as a hotspot of archaeology.

Wanderings in Roman Britain Weigall, 1926 The Roman Baths and Macellum at Wroxeter Peter Ellis, 2014-04-15. Excavations by Graham Webster at Wroxeter (Viroconium Cornoviorum) were undertaken on the southern part of the insula containing the baths and market hall (macellum), the latter one of few known in the province. The excavations enable the construction sequence and function of these major public buildings to be unravelled and analysed in detail on an insula untouched by medieval or later buildings. The work revealed that timber-framed buildings constructed c. AD 90 and fronting on Watling Street were swept away to accommodate the public buildings which were built over several decades between the 120s and 160s. Changes were introduced in the third century when a swimming pool natatio was filled in and an additional baths suite was built in the exercise yard to one side of the main baths complex. Excavations in the street porticoes and on Watling Street revealed a continued use of some of the buildings into the fifth century after their original functions had ceased. The artefact and environmental finds reports are on material deriving mainly from the initial building campaign but with some third century groups. The report includes an edition and compilation of the accounts of the nineteenth century excavations by Thomas Wright and others.
