Incurable-Image Elhaik Tarek Elhaik, 2016-02-12

From the 1990s onwards the ethnographic turn in contemporary art has generated intense dialogues between anthropologists artists and curators While ethnography has been both generously and problematically re appropriated by the art world curation has seldom caught the conceptual attention of anthropologists Based on two years of participant observation in Mexico City Tarek Elhaik addresses this lacuna by examining the concept work of curatorial platforms and media artists Taking his cue from ongoing critiques of Mexicanist aesthetics and what Roger Bartra calls the post Mexican condition Elhaik conceptualises curation less as an exhibition oriented practice within a national culture than as a figure of care and an image of thought animating a complex assemblage of inter medial practices from experimental cinema and installations to curatorial collaborations Drawing on Gilles Deleuze and Paul Rabinow the book introduces the concept of the Incurable Image an antidote to our curatorial malaise and the ethical substance for a post social anthropology of images with his penetrating eyes hovering over her Then he gulped thickly How could it be The question pondered in his head as he stared down at the weak girl curled up and trembling before him whom a strange fragrance had drawn him to Could she be his mate No no way he muttered under his breath taking a foot backward There was no way he would agree to being mate to a weakling and a slave Never
