It brings together the contributions of world class researchers to lay out the evidence and a plan of attack for coping with this crisis. The text begins by focusing on the research methods used in assessing the complex associations between activity energy balance and risk and prognosis. In comprehensive literature reviews the authors consider the role of physical activity in the incidence of individual cancers then explore the mechanisms that might explain this connection. They continue with a look at the relation between weight and cancer incidence including a consideration of genetics. Research is also provided linking physical activity and weight control to a cancer patient's quality of life and prognosis. The work concludes with ideas on how a plan of action might be implemented at the individual clinical and public health levels.
