Abstract

Objective: To understand nurse perspectives on the physical health needs of their mental health clients and how well rural services are meeting their overall care needs.

Design: Focus groups with semistructured format.

Setting: Community mental health care in a regional and rural district of Queensland.

Participants: Thirty-eight nurses in public mental health care.

Results: The major themes were (i) stigma of mental illness, (ii) barriers to accessing physical health care services, (iii) nurse adaptations under demands, and (iv) community and integration towards better overall health. Nurses integrate overall care and foster its continuity for people with physical and mental co-morbidity and can be supported much better in sustaining this.

Conclusion: Access and continuity of physical health care experienced by all Australians is exacerbated for people in rural areas. Physical health of people with serious mental illness residing in remote Australia needs to be a national health priority.

KEY WORDS: collaborative care, health services access, nursing, rural mental health, rural physical health.

Introduction

People who have serious mental illness (SMI) have increased occurrence of physical illness.^{1–3} People with schizophrenia live up to 25 less years⁴ frequently because of preventable risks that health care services are regularly found to not address adequately.^{5–7} While people with SMI do not appear to be getting integrated physical and mental health services in general, there is little known whether the source of gaps in care identified in metropolitan and high-population regional areas such as clinical silos,⁸ stigma of mental illness among physical health services⁹ – generalise to rural and remote areas. Long-recognised challenges in rural health within Australia might exacerbate the problems just canvassed in relation to people with SMI accessing quality physical health care and maintenance of access to manage long-term health issues. These challenges include distance to services,¹⁰ workforce shortages, such as in rural and remote nurses,¹¹ and funding shortages and fragmentation.¹² At the same time, strengths of rural health such as innovations in care and broad-based skills of individual staff might be important resources in ensuring overall care for people with multiple physical-mental health care needs, but there is little research to inform this.

Nurses employed in mental health care in rural and regional locations are generally the professionals with most contact with people for health service provision and overall care, and therefore might serve an integral role in providing physical and mental health care^{13,14} and inform the wider health care community on what is taking place with respect to combined health care services for people with SMI. It is striking that there are, to our knowledge, no studies of nurse perceptions on the physical health needs of their clients in mental health care, the level of overall health care support of clients, and whether and how nurses deliver physical care. This paper reports findings of an exploratory qualitative study of nurse perspectives on the physical health of people with SMI in a large district of Queensland. In particular, the aim was to ascertain what nurses thought of the availability and appropriateness of physical health services for clients in regional, rural and remote areas, and their own health care provision in that context.

Nursing Perspective On Severe Mental Illness:

A Nursing Perspective on Severe Mental Illness Linda Chafetz, 1993 Mental Illness in the Family Beverley Abosh, April Collins, 1996-01-01

Mental Illness in the Family traces the development of treatment approaches with families of the mentally ill over the past three decades. The essays in this book reflect the work of clinicians currently dealing with families in a variety of settings and from a number of perspectives. Topics covered include patients' views on programs for the mentally ill, the needs of families coming to terms with the mental illness of a family member, the forgotten sibling, the concept of grief, the confusion that a family member can experience when dealing simultaneously with the mental health and the criminal justice systems, and the effect of parental mental illness on young children. This volume will be of particular interest to social workers, clinical psychiatrists, psychologists, and other mental health professionals who work primarily with individuals and families who have been affected by major mental illness.

Interprofessional Perspectives Of Mental Health Crisis: For Nurses, Health, and the Helping Professions Kris Deering, Joanne Williams, 2022-03-04

There is plenty in this book to get your teeth into and help us think about how we work with people in mental health crises and how we might best make a difference. Alan Simpson, Professor of Mental Health Nursing, Health Service and Population Research, King's College London, UK. Any one of us could experience a mental health crisis. However, a high quality interdisciplinary response can be lifesaving and life changing. This book is an important contribution to the literature as it has examples of good practice for all professionals, both on the frontline and in service development. Dr Adrian James, President, Royal College of Psychiatrists, UK. This publication is a valuable and timely resource given the increasing recognition of the impact of mental health needs in a range of different professional settings. Victoria Sweetmore, Acting Discipline Lead for Mental Health and Learning Disability Nursing, University of Derby, UK.

Interprofessional Perspectives of Mental Health Crisis improves the care of those experiencing a mental health related crisis by providing insight into the roles different UK statutory services have and the need for collaborative mental health care. For those studying and working in the field of mental health crisis, this vital work will bridge your understanding by offering a cross discipline perspective of the different services, their role in aiding service users, and the ways we can work more collaboratively together to meet the mental health needs of those requiring care. Throughout the book, it promotes understanding of the various roles each of the key services play within the crucial first 24 hours of a mental health crisis and the challenges they face. Fosters interprofessional collaboration to create a whole system approach to crisis care. Helps professionals to understand good practice and the challenges of other services when aiding a person in crisis. Critically evaluates service provision and ways to improve crisis care. Explores recovery and collaboration with service users experiencing a crisis and their significant others. The book is timely and essential in its promotion of high quality interdisciplinary response and emphasis on integration and collaboration between service providers.
