Pacific People And Change:

Island Time Damon Salesa, 2017-12-08 The task of living in modern New Zealand and especially in modern Auckland is not just to understand how to live with different peoples but how to adapt to the future that has already happened New Zealand is a nation that exists on Pacific Islands but does not will not perhaps cannot see itself as a Pacific Island nation Yet turning to the Pacific argues Damon Salesa enables us to grasp a fuller understanding of what life is really like on these shores After all Salesa argues in many ways New Zealand's Pacific future has already happened Setting a course through the islands of Pacific life in New Zealand tara Tokoroa Porirua amaru and beyond he charts a country becoming even more Pacific by the hour What would it mean this far sighted book asks for New Zealand to recognise its Pacific talent and finally act like a Pacific nation

Population, Migration and Settlement in Australia and the Asia-Pacific Natascha Klocker, Olivia Dun, 2018-12-07 The chapters in this book reflect on the work of seminal Australian geographer the late Professor Graeme Hugo Graeme Hugo was widely respected because of his impressive contributions to scholarship and policy in the fields of migration population and development which spanned several decades This collection of works contains contributions from authors whose own research has been influenced by Hugo and includes numerous authors who worked closely with Hugo throughout his career The collection provides an opportunity to reflect on Hugo's legacy and also to foreground contemporary scholarship in his key areas of research focus The chapters are organised into two thematic threads Part I contains works relating to Population Migration and Settlement in Australia while Part II focuses on Labour and Environmental Migration in the Asia Pacific Together these two thematic threads provide broad coverage of Graeme Hugo's key areas of research focus The chapters also serve as a reminder of Hugo's steadfast concern with producing careful scholarship for the public good and seek to prompt continued work in this vein The chapters originally published in special issues in Australian Geographer

Climate Change and Impacts in the Pacific Lalit Kumar, 2020-01-31 This edited volume addresses the impacts of climate change on Pacific islands and presents databases and indexes for assessing and adapting to island vulnerabilities By analyzing susceptibility variables developing comprehensive vulnerability indexes and applying GIS techniques the book's authors demonstrate the particular issues presented by climate change in the islands of the Pacific region and how these issues may be managed to preserve and improve biodiversity and human livelihoods The book first introduces the issues specific to island communities such as high emissions impacts and discusses the importance of the lithological traits of Pacific islands and how these physical factors relate to climate change impacts From here the book aims to analyze the various vulnerabilities of different island sectors and to formulate a susceptibility index from these variables to be used by government and planning agencies for relief prioritization Such variables include tropical cyclones built infrastructures proximity to coastal areas agriculture fisheries and marine resources groundwater availability biodiversity and economic impacts on industries such as tourism Through the categorization and indexing of these variables human and physical adaptation measures are proposed and support solutions are offered to aid the inhabitants of affected island countries This book is intended for policy makers academics and climate change researchers particularly those dealing with climate change impacts on small islands

E. Johnson,Alistair J. Hobday,2011-01-01 Health Change in the Asia-Pacific Region Ryutaro Ohtsuka,Stanley J.

Ulijaszek,2007-05-24 The Asia Pacific region has seen great social environmental and economic change across the past century leading to dramatic changes in the health profiles of all populations represented in South East and East Asia Pacific Islands and the islands of Melanesia This volume considers evidence concerning prehistoric migration and colonial regional and global processes in the production of health change in the Asia Pacific region Notably it examines ways in which a health pattern dominated by under nutrition and infection has been displaced in many ways and is being displaced elsewhere by over nutrition and the degenerative diseases associated with it This book presents a cohesive view of the ways in which exchange relationships economic modernization migration and transnational linkages interact with changing rural subsistence ecologies to influence health patterns in this region Addressing Climate Change and Migration in Asia and the Pacific Asian Development Bank,2012-03-01 Climate change will increase the frequency of extreme weather events making more geographic places inhospitable to human habitation and secure livelihoods This report presents a detailed picture of the potential impacts of climate change on migration in Asia and the Pacific It draws upon a wealth of research to provide policy makers with informed analysis of an emerging phenomenon requiring urgent attention by governments and the international community The report also suggests that climate induced migration should be seen not only as a threat to human well being but also as a potential tool to promote human adaptation to climate change Oceans Between Us Sereana Naepi,2025-07-10 Racism There we said it You can let your shoulders drop now that you know we will say the word and not sidestep it to protect people s comfort Or you can raise your shoulders in preparation for tension as you realise that this book will not talk about unconscious bias or other terms that enable us to excuse ourselves from our own complicity in inaction on or upholding of racist structures Sereana Naepi Salt water carries the weight of powerful stories of migration struggle and survival It is in the sweat of labour the tears of grief and joy and the waves that have shaped generations Like the ocean racism has carved deep scars in the landscapes we navigate In this collection thirteen Pacific scholars rise to turn the tide dissecting the racism embedded in New Zealand s core systems from education and health to justice and climate Through ten essays rooted in the va the relational space of story dialogue and environment each chapter builds on the next weaving together lived experiences and sharp insights Oceans Between Us is both a testimony and a call to action It documents the struggles of Pacific peoples and envisions a world beyond now A rallying cry for justice a demand for equity and a catalyst for change this book is not about survival alone it s about thriving Security Cooperation in the Pacific Islands Joanne Wallis,Henrietta McNeill,James Batley,Anna Powles,2025-03-20 Wallis McNeill Batley Powles and the contributors examine the dynamics of Pacific Islands security cooperation analysing how it helps address regional security challenges amid the broader strategic competition between China and the United States that is increasingly playing out in the region Pacific Island countries do not want to become pawns in this competition but its impacts are inescapable and are creating additional security challenges Compounding these effects are climate change and COVID 19 both of which have intersected with existing traditional and non traditional security challenges facing the region In response Pacific Island leaders have vowed to pursue greater security cooperation amongst themselves and with partner states This book addresses partner states interests in the region how these interests and Pacific priorities align and if not what the possible consequences may be It also analyses successful areas of security cooperation and tackles how challenges may be improved Incorporating a range of perspectives from key leaders practitioners and scholars this is an empirically grounded analysis of security cooperation within the Pacific Islands region and by the region's major partners. A vital resource for researchers and practitioners seeking to better understand Pacific Islands security collaboration and the inherent challenges it faces. Social Change In The Pacific Islands Robillard, 2020-02-21. First published in 1992. The Pacific Ocean is the largest geographical feature on the face of the earth, covering about one third of its entire surface. Occupying part of that large expanse are the far-flung islands of the Pacific. As the papers of this volume clearly indicate, the post world war II era and decolonization have brought unprecedented change and the Pacific is now experiencing problems that were formerly associated with other Third World nations. Most Pacific countries have rapidly expanding populations and over half of all Pacific Islanders are now in their teenage years or younger. Education and modern communications have served to increase aspirations and attract by hopes of employment and the distractions of urban life, islanders are gravitating to urban centers.

Climate Change and Conflict in the Pacific Ria Shibata, Seforosa Carroll, Volker Boege, 2023-10-20. Shibata, Carroll and Boege address the various dimensions of the climate change conflict nexus and shed light on the overwhelming challenges of climate change in the Pacific Islands region. This book highlights the multidimensionality of the problems: political, technical, material and emotional and psychological. Written by experts in the field, the chapters highlight the centrality and importance of opening up a dialogue between researchers involved in the large-scale global modelling of climate change and the local actors. Both scholars and civil society actors come together in sharing about the complexities of local contexts and the conflict-driving potential of climate change adaptation and mitigation strategies on the ground. The book brings together indigenous Pacific approaches with broader international debates in the climate change security discourse. Through various accounts and perspectives, current gaps in knowledge are bridged, contributing to the development of more grounded, conflict-sensitive climate change policies, strategies, governance and adaptation measures in the Pacific region. An important resource for students, researchers, policymakers and civil society actors interested in the multi-faceted issues of climate change in the Pacific.

Moving Lives - Cultivating with Climate Change in Vanuatu Desirée Hetzel, 2025-05-23. Horticulture in Oceania has been under increasing scrutiny due to climate change and related policies. In Vanuatu, cultivators navigate crop growth and community life within the context of shifting environments, storm events and innovations in climate projects. Desirée Hetzel offers new insights into the encounters and dynamics of climate change in this unique island nation by showing the routes around and roads towards gardening as both an environmental and a social practice. This reflection on indigenous agency from environmental anthropology and the anthropology of climate change comes at a critical moment of planetary transformation.

The Pacific Festivals of Aotearoa New Zealand Jared Mackley-Crump, 2015-04-30. With a history now stretching back four decades, Pacific festivals of Aotearoa assert a multicultural identity of New Zealand and situate the country squarely within a sea of islands. In this volume Jared Mackley Crump gives a provocative look at the changing demographics and cultural landscape of a place frequently viewed through a bicultural lens P keh and M ori Taking the post World War II migrations of Pacific peoples to New Zealand as its starting point the story begins in 1972 with the inaugural Polynesian Festival an event that was primarily designed as a M ori festival now known as Te Matatini the largest M ori performing arts event in the world Two major moments of festivalization are considered the birth of Polyfest in 1976 and the inaugural Pasifika Festival of 1993 Both began in Auckland the home of the largest Pacific communities in New Zealand and both have spawned a series of events that follow the models they successfully established While Polyfests focus primarily on the transmission of performance traditions from culture bearers to the young largely New Zealand born generations Pasifika festivals are highly public community events in which diverse displays of material culture are offered up for consumption by both cultural tourists and Pacific communities alike Both models have experienced a significant period of growth since 1993 and here the author presents a thought provoking and wide ranging analysis to explain the phenomenon that has been called a Pacific renaissance Written from an ethnomusicological perspective The Pacific Festivals of Aotearoa New Zealand incorporates lively first person observations as well as interviews with festival organizers performers and other important historical figures The second half of the book delves into the festival space uncovering new meanings about the function and role of music performance and public festivity The author skillfully challenges accounts that label festivals as inauthentic recreations of culture for tourist audiences and gives both observers and participants an uplifting new approach to understand these events as meaningful and symbolic extensions of the ways diasporic Pacific communities operate in New Zealand
