

PREFACE

THIS book has been written for the craftsman painter in oil, water colour, tempera, and fresco, not for the scientific chemist or the manufacturer. It therefore deals with methods and the properties of materials rather than their chemical description or methods of manufacture. For example, the chemistry of the drying of linseed oil is so complex as to be unintelligible to anyone who is not a student of chemistry. I therefore treat only with the results of these changes.

Those who wish to pursue their studies further may consult, among standard books, Sir Arthur Church's Chemistry of Paints and Painting and Hurst's Paints, Colours, Oils, and Varnishes, and of modern works, Varnishes and their Components, by Dr. Morrell, Malmaterialien Kunde Als Grundlage Der Maltechnik, Die Anorganischen Farbstoffe, and Die Fette Öle, by Professor Eibner.

For those who wish to study the materials and methods of the Middle Ages to the close of the sixteenth century, the Classic work is still Eastlake's Materials for the History of Oil Painting, to which may be added Hendrie's Translation of Theophilus, Mrs. Merrifield's Fresco Painting and Original Treatises on the Arts of Painting, Lady Herringham's translation of Cennino Cennini, the translation of Vasari on Technique, by Louisa
