Love Letters and the Romantic Novel during the Napoleonic Wars Sharon Worley, 2017-01-06

Love letters during the Napoleonic wars were largely framed by concepts of love which were promoted through novels and philosophy The standard texts so to speak which were written by major authors who inherited this Enlightenment bearing responded to the emerging concepts of love found in novels and philosophical essays

Chateaubriand Benjamin Constant Lady Emma Hamilton Napoleon Bonaparte and his brother Lucien Bonaparte were the authors and recipients of some of the most passionate love letters of this period They were also avid readers of the newly emerging genre of the romantic novel and many of them were also authors of such works where they projected their personal romances onto the characterization of their fictional heroes and heroines In addition these authors had lived through the recent French Revolution and the Terror Imprisoned during the Revolution or branded as emigrés upon their return to Paris their mature adult lives were spent in the shadows of the Napoleonic wars in which they shifted political loyalties as the specter of Napoleon's powers grew from First Consul to Emperor of Europe The looming threat of war ignited the depths of their passions and inspired their intellectual analysis of love happiness and suicide Their evolving concept of love was a romantic all consuming passion which gripped the lovers in fatal embraces This book's analysis of their love letters and romantic novels reveals the emerging political landscape of the period through extended metaphors of love and patriotism

The Family, Marriage, and Radicalism in British Women's Novels of the 1790s Jennifer Golightly, 2012-02-01 This book explores the ways in which five female radical novelists of the 1790s Elizabeth Inchbald Eliza Fenwick Mary Hays Charlotte Smith and Mary Wollstonecraft attempted to use the components of private life to work toward widespread social reform These writers depict the conjugal family as the site for a potential reformation of the prejudices and flaws of the biological family The biological family in the radical novels of female writers is fraught with problems greed and selfishness pervert the relationships between siblings and neglect and ignorance characterize the parenting received by the heroines Additionally the radical novelists responding to representations of biological families as inherently restrictive for unmarried women develop the notion of marriage to a certain type of man as a social duty Marriage between two properly sensible people who have both cultivated their reason and understanding and who can live together as equals sharing domestic responsibilities is shown to be an ideal with the power to create social change Positioning their depictions of marriage in opposition to earlier feminist depictions of female utopian societies the female radical novelists of the 1790s strive to depict relationships between men and women that are characterized by cooperation individual autonomy and equality What is most important about these depictions is their ultimate failure Most of the female radical novelists find such marriages nearly impossible to conceptualize Marriage for many of the female radical novelists was an institution they perceived as inextricably related to male concerns about property and inescapably patriarchal under the marriage laws of late eighteenth century British society Unions between two worthy individuals outside the boundaries of marriage are shown in the female radical novels to be equally problematic sex inevitably is the basis for such unions yet sex leaves women vulnerable to exploitation by men Rather than the triumph therefore of what comes to be in these novels the male associated values of property and power through marriage the female radical novels end by suggesting an alternative community one that will shelter those members of society who are most frequently exploited in male attempts to accumulate this property and power women servants and children
