Rome Ulrich Fürst, 1998 Architects and artists have always acknowledged over the centuries that Rome is rightly called the eternal city Rome is eternal above all because it was always young always in its prime Here the buildings that defined the West appeared over more than 2000 years here the history of European architecture was written The foundations were laid even in ancient Roman times when the first attempts were made to design interiors and thus make space open to experience as something physical And at that time the Roman architects also started to develop building types that are still valid today thus creating the cornerstone of later Western architecture In it Rome's primacy remained unbroken whether it was with old St Peter's as the first medieval basilica or new St Peter's as the building in which Bramante and Michelangelo developed the High Renaissance or with works by Bernini and Borromini whose rich and lucid spatial forms were to shape Baroque as far as Vienna Bohemia and Lower Franconia and also with Modern buildings of which there are many unexpected pearls to be found in Rome All this is comprehensible only if it is presented historically i.e. in chronological sequence and so the guide has not been arranged topographically as usual but chronologically This means that one is not led in random sequence from a Baroque building to an ancient or a modern one but the historical development is followed successively Every epoch is preceded by an introduction that identifies its key features This produces a continuous lavishly illustrated history of the architecture of Rome and thus at the same time of the whole of the West Practical handling is guaranteed by an alphabetical index and detailed maps whose information does not just immediately illustrate the historical picture but also makes it possible to choose a personal route through history

Rome and The Guidebook

Tradition Anna Blennow, Stefano Fogelberg Rota, 2019-04-01 To this day no comprehensive academic study of the development of guidebooks to Rome over time has been performed This book treats the history of guidebooks to Rome from the Middle Ages up to the early twentieth century It is based on the results of the interdisciplinary research project Topos and Topography led by Anna Blennow and Stefano Fogelberg Rota From the case studies performed within the project it becomes evident that the guidebook as a phenomenon was formed in Rome during the later Middle Ages and early Renaissance The elements and rhetorical strategies of guidebooks over time have shown to be surprisingly uniform with three important points of development a turn towards a more user friendly structure from the seventeenth century and onward the so called Baedeker effect in the mid nineteenth century and the introduction of a personalized guiding voice in the first half of the twentieth century Thus the guidebook tradition is an unusually consistent literary oeuvre which also forms a warranty for the authority of every new guidebook In this respect the guidebook tradition is intimately associated with the city of Rome with which it shares a constantly renovating yet eternally fixed nature
