Confronting Genocide René

Provost, Payam Akhavan, 2010-11-11 Never again stands as one of the central pledges of the international community following the end of the Second World War upon full realization of the massive scale of the Nazi extermination programme. Genocide stands as an intolerable assault on a sense of common humanity embodied in the Universal Declaration of Human Rights and other fundamental international instruments including the Convention on the Prevention and Punishment of the Crime of Genocide and the United Nations Charter. And yet since the Second World War the international community has proven incapable of effectively preventing the occurrence of more genocides in places like Cambodia, Yugoslavia, Rwanda, and Sudan. Is genocide actually preventable or is it ever again a more accurate catchphrase to capture the reality of this phenomenon? The essays in this volume explore the complex nature of genocide and the relative promise of various avenues identified by the international community to attempt to put a definitive end to its occurrence. Essays focus on a conceptualization of genocide as a social and political phenomenon, on the identification of key actors (Governments, international institutions, the media, civil society individuals) and on an exploration of the relative promise of different means to prevent genocide: criminal accountability, civil disobedience, shaming, intervention.

Criminal Justice in Transition Anne-Marie McAlinden, Clare Dwyer, 2015-11-12 This book represents a critical examination of key aspects of crime and criminal justice in Northern Ireland which will have resonance elsewhere. It considers the core aspects of criminal justice policy making in Northern Ireland which are central to the process of post conflict transition including reform of policing, judicial decision making and correctional services such as probation and prisons. It examines contemporary trends in criminal justice in Northern Ireland and various dimensions of crime relating to female offenders, young offenders, sexual and violent offenders, community safety and restorative justice. The book also considers the extent to which crime and criminal justice issues in Northern Ireland are being affected by the broader processes of policy transfer, globalisation and transnationalism and the extent to which criminal justice in Northern Ireland is divergent from the other jurisdictions in the United Kingdom. Written by leading international authorities in the field, the book offers a snapshot of the cutting edge of critical thinking in criminal justice practice and transitional justice contexts.

Agusti-Panareda R.P. Misra,2007 Emotions in Conflict Eran Halperin,2015-12-07 Social and political psychologists have attempted to reveal the reasons why individuals and societies that acknowledge that peace would improve their personal and collective well being and are aware of the required actions needed to promote it are simply incapable of making this step forward Some social psychologists have advocated the idea that certain societal beliefs and collective memories about the nature of the opponent the in group the history and the current state of the conflict distort the perceptions of society members and prevent them from identifying opportunities for peace But these cognitive barriers capture only part of the picture Could identifying the role of discrete emotions in conflicts and conflict resolution potentially provide a wide platform for developing pinpoint conflict resolution interventions Using a vast array of primary sources critical literature analysis and firsthand personal experiences in various conflict zones Middle East Cyprus Bosnia and Northern Ireland Eran Halperin introduces a new perspective on psychological barriers to peace Halperin focuses on various emotional mechanisms that hamper peace processes even when parties face real opportunities for conflict resolution More specifically he explores how hatred anger fear angst hope despair empathy guilt and shame combined with various emotion regulation strategies provide emotions based explanations for people s attitudinal and behavioral reactions to peace related events during the ongoing process of conflict resolution Written in a clear and accessible style Emotions in Conflict offers a thought provoking and pioneering insight into the role discrete intergroup emotions play in impeding as well as facilitating peace processes in intractable conflicts This book is essential reading for those who study intractable conflicts and their resolutions and those who are interested in the real world implication of recent theories and findings on emotion and emotion regulation

Brown,2016-06-16 Countries emerging from civil war or protracted violence often face the daunting challenge of rebuilding their economy while simultaneously creating the political and social conditions for a stable peace The implicit assumption in the international community that rapid political democratisation along with economic liberalisation holds the key to sustainable peace is belied by the experiences of countries such as Iraq and Afghanistan Often the challenges of post conflict reconstruction revolve around the timing and sequencing of different reform that may have contradictory implications Drawing on a range of thematic studies and empirical cases this book examines how post conflict reconstruction policies can be better sequenced in order to promote sustainable peace The book provides evidence that many reforms that are often thought to be imperative in post conflict societies may be better considered as long term objectives and that the immediate imperative for such societies should be people centred policies Making History in Mugabe's Zimbabwe Blessing-Miles Tendi,2010 The crisis that has engulfed Zimbabwe since 2000 is not simply a struggle against dictatorship It is also a struggle over ideas and deep seated historical issues still unresolved from the independence process that both Robert Mugabe s ZANU PF regime and Morgan Tsvangirai s MDC are vying first to define and then to address This book traces the role of politicians and public intellectuals
