Scanlon,1987 Urban Planning in Mexico Paavo Monkkonen,Jorge Canez,Aurora Echavarria,2020-12-31 This book examines the scope of urban planning in Mexico through case studies of four municipalities Campeche Hermosillo Leon and Morelia that have recently updated their plans using new federal guidelines We seek to advance a research agenda on the impacts of planning and its effectiveness by proposing some foundations for how to assess planning processes as well as to provide guidance for the federal government of Mexico in its oversight of municipal planning practice and recommendations for the four cities we study We begin with the concern that the debate over whether urban planning in Mexico works suffers from a lack of shared definitions about what is and is not within the scope of urban planning and a shared conceptual framework for assessing the planning process The case studies were conducted as part of a graduate studio in the Department of Urban Planning at UCLA. They rely on multiple interviews with planners and professionals in each city as well as documentary and data analysis and literature reviews. We use a framework of five processes: creating a plan, implementing the plan, raising revenue to fund urban infrastructure, upgrading existing neighborhoods to ensure equal access across neighborhoods, and investing in new infrastructure to support growth. Each case presents a brief urban history and contextual data, a description of local government planning activities, the current plan, the city's political history and transparency in local planning, an assessment of planning processes, the mechanisms for changing land uses, and examples of one infrastructure project and enforcement of land use rules, and an evaluation of the plan itself, including some GIS analysis, local zoning, and federal policy. The book's recommendations fall into three areas: making plans part of an ongoing and iterative process, increasing coordination between municipal budgeting and planning, and creating transparency and public input to the planning process. More specifically, we find that new plans often ignore successes and failures of prior plans; they do not periodically assess indicators to gauge impact; and discretionary changes in between plan updates diminishes the importance of the plan itself. In the second area, we argue that the scope of planning must be expanded. The plan should be integrated with the municipal budgeting process, and municipalities in Mexico should work to generate more local revenues to adequately fund plans. Finally, in the third area, we recommend making planning documents, zoning maps, and basic data on urban conditions accessible to the public. A lack of transparency and the often opaque decision-making processes harm the legitimacy of governance. We also outline how the federal government can play a role in advancing these recommendations for local planning processes.

State of the World's Cities 2010/2011, 2010. One billion people worldwide live in slums, and that figure is predicted to reach 2 billion by 2030. This new volume from UN HABITAT unpacks the complex social and economic issues using the novel conceptual framework of the urban divide.

State of the World's Cities 2010/11 Un-Habitat, 2010-08-12. The world's urban population now exceeds the world's rural population. What does this mean for the state of our cities given the strain this global demographic shift is placing upon current urban infrastructures? Following on from previous State of the World's Cities reports, this edition uses the framework of The Urban Divide to analyse the complex social, political, economic, and cultural dynamics of urban environments. In particular, the book focuses on the concept of the right to the city and ways in which many urban dwellers are excluded from the advantages of city life, using the framework to explore links among poverty, inequality, slum formation, and economic growth. The volume will be essential reading for all professionals and policymakers in the field, as well as a valuable resource for researchers and students in all aspects of urban development. Published with UN Habitat. GrEEEn Solutions for Livable Cities Sonia Chand Sandhu, Ramola Naik Singru, John Bachmann, Vaideeswaran Sankaran, Pierre Arnoux, 2016-02-01. This publication is a result of a 2-year innovative exploratory and reflective study of cities as unique urban spaces that support life, work, and play. It responds to major issues that affect the quality of life of urban residents. This publication offers practical ways on how urban managers urban practitioners businesspeople and citizens can engage to make cities more livable by building on their distinctive physical social cultural and economic characteristics With the adoption of the Sustainable Development Goals by the United Nations the book comes at the right time to offer integrated urban development solutions that can translate global development commitments into urban level actions to achieve livable cities
