Folk Housing in Middle Virginia Henry Glassie, 1975 In this fascinating analysis of eighteenth century vernacular houses of Middle

Virginia Henry Glassie presents a revolutionary and carefully constructed methodology for looking at houses and interpreting from them the people who built and used them. Glassie believes that all relevant historical evidence, unwritten as well as written, must be taken into account before historical truth can be found. He is convinced that any study of man's past must make use of nonverbal and verbal evidence, since written history, the story of man as recorded by the intellectual elite, does not tell us much about the everyday life, thoughts, and fears of the ordinary people of the past. Such people have always been in the majority, however, and a way has to be found to include them in any valid history. In Folk Housing in Middle Virginia, Glassie admirably sets forth such a way. The people who lived in Middle Virginia in the eighteenth century are almost unknown to history because so little has been written about them. After Glassie selected the area roughly Goochland and Louisa counties for study, he selected a representative part of the countryside, recorded all the older houses there, developed a transformational grammar of traditional house designs, and examined the area's architectural stability and change. Comparing the houses with written accounts of the period, he found that the houses became more formal and less related to their environment at the same time as the area's established political, economic, and religious institutions were disintegrating. It is as though the builders of the houses were deliberately trying to impose order on the surrounding chaotic world. Previous orthodox historical interpretations of the period have failed to note this. Glassie has provided new insights into the intellectual and social currents of the period and at that time has rescued a heretofore little-known people from historiographical oblivion. Combining a fresh perceptive approach with a broad interdisciplinary body of knowledge, he has made an invaluable breakthrough in showing the way to understand the people of history who have left their material things as their only legacy. Henry Glassie is College Professor of Folklore at Indiana University. He is the author of Pattern in the Material Folk Culture of the Eastern United States, Passing the Time in Ballymenone, Irish Folktales, and The Spirit of Folk Art. He has served as president of the Vernacular Architecture Forum and the American Folklore Society.

Tribe and Polity in Late Prehistoric Europe D. Blair Gibson, M.N. Geselowitz, 2013-11-11 During HaA-HaB many settlements were established in Silesia and in the central part of Poland, and their stability seems to be confirmed by the existence of regional groups and subgroups by long-lasting colonies and by long-used burial grounds located at large settlements. At the end of HaB many pre-Scythian elements occurred in this area, only partly influenced by the Cimmerians. During that period the peoples living north of the Carpathian and Sudeten Mountains remained very dependent on the productive and cultural circle south of the Carpathians, with which they maintained strong connections. The Lusatian settlement zone, apart from its increasing internal stability, also tended to extend its range. A partition of the Lusatian Culture, which had appeared earlier, became more pronounced under the strong influence of the East Hallstatt cultural and productive center in the eastern Alpine region and the so-called amber route. The eastern zone of the Lusatian Culture remained under the influence of the Carpathian center, while the western zone was strongly influenced by the pre-Celtic Bylanska or Horakowska and northern Illyrian Calan.

denberian cultures In HaD2 ca 520 500 B C this latter area was the site of an armed incursion of Scythian groups coming from the east through the Karpacka Valley The most characteristic features of the western zone include its own varieties of more general Hallstatt traits such as fortified settlements which date from HaA in the Lusatian Culture production of iron done domestically since HaD and decorated pottery      Exiles of Erin Lynn Hollen Lees,1979      Deserted Villages Revisited Christopher Dyer,Richard Jones,2010 Assembling leading experts on the subject this account explores the circumstances surrounding the disappearance of thousands of villages and smaller settlements in England and Wales between 1340 and 1750 By revisiting the deserted villages this breakthrough study addresses questions that have plagued archaeologists geographers and historians since the 1940s including why they were deserted why some villages survived while others were abandoned and who was responsible for their desertion offering a series of exciting insights into the fate of these fascinating sites      Irish Pilgrimage Michael P. Carroll,1999 Little Kiwi is out at night with his dad going into a part of the bush he has never been to before While Dad is busy collecting worms and grubs Little Kiwi meets a terrifying monster or does he Soon the bush is in an uproar and Little Kiwi must face up to his fears      British Book News ,1971
