Mass Audience Rediscovering The Dominant Model:

The Mass Audience James Webster, Patricia F. Phalen, 2013-11-05 In the early 20th century a new and distinctive concept of the audience rose to prominence The audience was seen as a mass a large collection of people mostly unknown to one another that was unified through exposure to media This construct offered a pragmatic way to map audiences that was relevant to industry government and social theorists In a relatively short period of time it became the dominant model for studying the audience Today it is so pervasive that most people simply take it for granted Recently media scholars have reopened inquiry into the meaning of audience They question the utility of the mass audience concept characterizing it as insensitive to differences among audience members inescapably bound up with discredited notions of mass society or serving only a narrow set of industrial interests The authors of this volume find that these assertions are often false and unwarranted either by the historical record or by contemporary industry practice Instead they argue for a rediscovery of the dominant model by summarizing and critiquing the very considerable body of literature on audience behavior and by demonstrating different ways of analyzing mass audiences Further they provide a framework for understanding the future of the audience in the new media environment and suggest how the concept of mass audience can illuminate research on media effects cultural studies and media policy

The Empire of Mind Michael Strangelove, 2005-12-15 Where many critics see the Internet as an instrument of corporate hegemony Michael Strangelove sees something else an alternative space inhabited by communities dedicated to anarchic freedom culture jamming alternative journalism and resistance to authoritarian forms of consumer capitalism and globalization In The Empire of Mind Dr Strangelove the scholar Canadian Business referred to as the acknowledged dean of Internet entrepreneurs and Wired called the Canadian guru of Internet advertising presents the compelling argument that the Internet and new digital communication technology actually undermine the power of capital producing an alternative symbolic economy Strangelove contends that the Internet breaks with the capitalist logic of commodification and that while television produces a passive consumer audience Internet audiences are more active creative and subversive Writers activists and artists on the Internet undermine commercial media and its management of consumer behaviour a behaviour that is challenged by the Web's tendency toward the disintegration of intellectual property rights Case studies describe the invention of new meaning given to cultural and consumer icons like Barbie and McDonald's and explore how novel modes of online news production alter the representation of the world as it is produced by the mainstream corporate press In the course of exploring new media The Empire of Mind also makes apparent that digital piracy will not be eliminated The Internet community effectively converts private property into public thereby presenting serious obstacles for the management of consumer behaviour and significantly eroding brand value Much to the dismay of the corporate sector online communities are disinterested in the ethics of private property In fact the entire philosophical framework on which capitalism is based is threatened by these alternative means of cultural production
