Korean issue and more South Korea Andrea Matles Savada, William Shaw, 1997-07 Describes and analyzes South Korea's political, economic, social, and national security systems and institutions. Examines the interrelationships of those systems and the ways they are shaped by cultural factors. Provides a basic understanding of the observed society striving for a dynamic portrayal. Particular attention is devoted to the people who make up the society, their origins, dominant beliefs, and values, their common interests, and the issues on which they are divided, the nature and extent of their involvement with national institutions, and their attitudes toward each other and toward their social system and political order Taiwan's Economic Success Since 1980 Zhaocheng Mai, Jiansheng Shi, 2001-01-01 The book will be of great help to readers interested in Taiwan's economic performance over the past twenty years. Gilles Guiheux, The China Journal. Taiwan's economic development experience represents a unique case study, especially in the wake of the Asian financial crisis. Taiwan has performed outstandingly in terms of macroeconomic and industrial development, particularly during recent democratic and social change. This book aims to provide a broad picture of these institutional reforms and policy evolutions Society and Democracy in South Korea and Indonesia Brendan Howe, 2022-09-03 This book is divided into three sections comprised of pairs of chapters. First, a section examining how Confucianism interacts with democratic resilience in South Korea, compared with the societal role and challenge of Islam in Indonesian democracy. The second section will conduct brief historical surveys of the role of civil society in Korean and Indonesian democratization and debates about the appropriate role for civil society after democratization. In particular, the various roles of civil society, non-governmental organizations, NGOs, and popular movements will be highlighted in both countries. The final section looks at socio-economic conditions and distributive justice in relation to democracy in the Republic of Korea (ROK) and Indonesia Organizing at the Margins Jennifer Jihye Chun, 2011-08-11 The realities of globalization have produced a surprising reversal in the focus and strategies of labor movements around the world. After years of neglect and exclusion, labor organizers are recognizing both the needs and the importance of immigrants and women employed in the growing ranks of low-paid and insecure service jobs. In Organizing at the Margins, Jennifer Jihye Chun focuses on this shift as it takes place in two countries: South Korea and the United States. Using comparative historical inquiry and in-depth case studies, she shows how labor movements in countries with different histories and structures of economic development, class formation, and cultural politics embark on similar trajectories of change. Chun shows that as the base of worker power shifts from those who hold high-paying industrial jobs to the formerly unorganizable labor movements in both countries, they are employing new strategies and vocabularies to challenge the assault of neoliberal globalization on workers' rights and livelihoods. Deftly combining theory and ethnography, she argues that by cultivating alternative sources of symbolic leverage that root workers' demands in the collective morality of broad-based communities, as opposed to the narrow confines of workplace disputes, workers in the lowest tiers are transforming the power relations that sustain downgraded forms of work. Her case studies of janitors and personal service workers in the United States and South Korea offer a surprising comparison between converging labor movements in two very different countries as they refashion their relation to historically disadvantaged sectors of the workforce and expand the moral and material boundaries of union membership in a globalizing world

Korean Skilled Workers Hyung-A Kim, 2020-05-15 South Korea s triumphant development has catapulted the country s economy to the eleventh largest in the world Large family owned conglomerates or chaeb ls such as Samsung Hyundai and LG have become globally preeminent manufacturing brands Yet Korea s highly disciplined technologically competent skilled workers who built these brands have become known only for their successful labor union militancy which in recent decades has been criticized as collective selfishness that has allowed them to prosper at the expense of other workers Hyung A Kim tells the story of Korea s first generation of skilled workers in the heavy and chemical industries sector following their dramatic transition from 1970s era industrial warriors to labor union militant Goliat Warriors and ultimately to a labor aristocracy with guaranteed job security superior wages and even job inheritance for their children By contrast millions of Korea s non regular employees especially young people struggle in precarious and insecure employment This richly documented account demonstrates that industrial workers most enduring goal has been their own economic advancement not a wider socialist revolution and shows how these individuals paths embody the consequences of rapid development

Economic Crisis and Corporate Restructuring in Korea Stephan Haggard, Wonhyuk Lim, Euysung Kim, 2003-02-26 Asian business conglomerates have clearly been successful agents of growth mobilizing capital borrowing technology from abroad and spearheading Asia s exports However these firms have long had a number of organisational and financial weaknesses including heavy reliance on debt that make them vulnerable to shocks Nowhere was this more true than in Korea where the large corporate groups known as chaebol have dominated the economic landscape This collection of essays by leading political scientists and economists provides a comprehensive look at the chaebol problem in the wake of the Asian financial crisis The authors consider the historical evolution of the chaebol and their contribution to the onset of economic turmoil in 1997 The book analyses the government's short run response to corporate and financial distress and outlines an agenda for longer term reform of the financial system corporate governance and the politics of business government relations

Global Challenges and Local Responses Jang-Sup Shin, 2007-08-07 East Asia has in many ways been the cockpit of the globalization process If the phenomenon as it is generally defined is largely recognized as a relatively recent one the countries that have experienced most change during this period have been in the region Rapid economic growth leading to the Tigers label was followed by financial crisis and partial recovery Underlying this has been the remarkable success story of Japan since the Second World War followed by the current seemingly inexorable progress of China towards centrality on the world stage Jang Sup Shin has amassed an international team of contributors to shed light on how the various Asian countries have responded to the globalization process These include James Crotty Lu Ding and Ha Joon Chang

Korea's Development Under Park Chung Hee Hyung-A Kim, 2004-08-02 Based on personal interviews with the principal policy makers of the 1970s Korea's Development under Park Chung Hee examines how the president sought to develop South Korea into an independent autonomous sovereign state both economically and militarily Kim provides a new narrative in the complex task of exploring the paradoxical nature and effects of Korea's rapid development which maintains that any judgement of Park must consider his achievements in the socio economic cultural and political context in which they took place Aspects of Park's government analyzed include his abhorrence of Korea's reliance on the US presence the Korean model of state guided industrialization Park's rapid development strategy the role of the ruling elites Park's clandestine nuclear development program the heavy chemical industrialisation of the 1970s The prevailing popularity of Park in the eyes of the Korean public is significant and relevant to their acceptance of how their national development was achieved This book tells that story while simultaneously recognizing the flaws in the process With a great deal of material never before published scholars of Korean politics and history at all levels will find this book a stimulating account of South Korea in the 1960s and 1970s

The State, Class and Developmentalism in South Korea Hae-Yung Song, 2019-10-16 This book problematises the statist underpinnings of the concept of the developmental state in terms of both state society and national global relations challenging the notion that the state is the agent of national development qua being autonomous from the domestic and global economies Presenting a thorough and comprehensive critical assessment of the extant approaches and theories of the Korean developmental state in particular this book demonstrates that the existing literature including Marxist critiques only inadequately and partially challenge statism It examines how statism reinforces and is reinforced by Third World Developmentalism the idea that development is in itself a positive goal and that a nationally autonomous mode of development should be promoted as a means of empowerment In opposition this book offers a critique of statism by constructing an alternative theoretical framework extending Marx's concept of commodity fetishism to state society and national global relations Drawing on a new theoretical framework and significant Korean literature The State Class and Developmentalism in South Korea offers a novel historical interpretation and critique of the developmental state in the Korean context As such it will be useful to students and scholars of Asian studies Development Studies and International Political Economy

Two Koreas in Development Byoung-Lo Philo Kim, The startling revolutions of recent years have had as great an impact on Northeast Asia as on Eastern Europe Gorbachev's cautious withdrawal of support for North Korea and his establishment of ties with South Korea have created a need for a new research agenda exploring how communism and capitalism in Asia can be successfully restructured or redirected in a new world order Focused on systemic issues this book is the first study to attempt a comprehensive analysis of social and economic development in modern Korea as a whole As a homogeneous nation artificially divided by the competing ideologies of the Cold War Korea provides a unique laboratory for comparing divergent development processes undertaken by conflicting social systems Current theories of Third World development have advocated either capitalist models of modernization or have called for the establishment of self-reliant socialist economies cut off from the world capitalist system While capitalist South Korea has consistently outperformed Communist North Korea since the mid 1970s development has not yet brought a fully evolved Western style democracy in its wake Self-reliant North Korea achieved successful growth during its first fifteen years but has since been faced with numerous structural limitations on sustained development including severe restrictions on political freedom and civil liberties In the author's view the experience of the two Koreas suggests that the solution to underdevelopment must be based on the realization that exclusionary theories need modification in the light of special historical and sociological circumstances peculiar to individual nations This volume offers a valuable interpretation of modern Korean history and constitutes an important contribution to the comparative study of capitalism and communism in practice It will be of particular interest to specialists in international relations and comparative political systems
