Teaching Integrated Reading Strategies in the Middle School Library Media Center Kathleen M. Alley, 2008-06-30 Drawing on the success of the popular elementary level book Teaching Reading Strategies in the School Library Walker and Shaw Libraries Unlimited 2004 this title will provide library media specialists with a resource to help integrate research based reading strategies into the middle school library curriculum as part of the library lesson The strategies discussed are those commonly used by teachers in the classroom and are easily adapted to use in the library media center allowing library teachers to support school wide reading initiatives through instruction while sharing appreciation of literature Reading strategies are incorporated in a chapter format explaining the strategy and benefits of integration as well as offering resources a review of the relevant research methods and a clear step by step approach to instruction Chapters share general knowledge about reading instruction and illustrate how media specialists can incorporate specific examples including reproducible items and graphic organizers The overall outline of the book parallels the usual reading instructional pattern of strategies to use before during and after reading Grades 6 8 Reading Instruction at the Middle School Level Mary Anne McGrath,2007 Raising Reading Achievement in Middle and High Schools Elaine K. McEwan,2006-09-26 Strengthen student literacy achievement in middle and high schools In response to the No Child Left Behind Act NCLB raising literacy levels in secondary schools has taken on a new urgency Recognized literacy author Elaine K McEwan focuses her revised second edition on enhancing the five big ideas for raising reading achievement with seven cognitive strategies of highly effective readers and more than twenty research based teaching for learning tips to infuse into daily content instruction Featuring reflection and discussion questions for reinforcement this indispensable guide demonstrates how to improve students literacy with these five teacher friendly strategies Focus on changing what you can change Teach the students who can t read how to read Teach every student how to read to learn Motivate all students to read more to read increasingly more challenging books and to be accountable for what they read Create a reading culture in your school With new programs designed for adolescent learners this update provides suggestions and developmental tools to effectively strengthen reading curriculum and instruction Reading specialists special education teachers literacy coaches intervention specialists and central office administrators can also use this essential tool for evaluating middle and high school reading programs and formulating school and district improvement goals Personalizing Reading Instruction in Middle, Junior, and Senior High Schools Martha H. Dillner,Joanne P. Olson,1982 Constructions of Literacy Louise E. Thomson,Jay W. Simmons,2010 Today s adolescents are expected to read and write well at highly competent levels and the content area literacy skills they will acquire in adolescence are necessary for academic achievement as well as life long learning In the middle grades content area literacy skills are perfected through work in various curricular areas which are housed in the context of specific school cultures Content literacy instructional practices shape the learning strategies needed in order to read and think critically about abstract ideas as a result of their reading skills Understanding the ways content area teachers support the development of adolescents literacy skills in the context of specific school cultures will do much to help us to improve young adolescents literacy learning environments and thus their literacy achievement In this qualitative comparative case study I sought to answer the question In a selected middle school how are young adolescents instructed in content area literacy in three disciplinary areas and how does the context of that middle school shape the delivery of this instruction This research study was conducted in a suburban public middle school in Southeastern Massachusetts with three content area teachers in three specific disciplines social studies science and mathematics During the course of a four month case study approximately sixteen weeks I collected data in the form of demographic surveys three classroom observations per content area teacher two on site interviews and visual data in order to document the literacy instructional practices found among these teachers within the same middle school Through the use of these standard qualitative research tools I documented the instructional practices and perspectives of these middle school teachers with the aim of better understanding the essential qualities of literacy instruction teachers implement in their content area courses and how that affects young adolescents literacy opportunities in these classrooms Throughout the course of the study I organized and analyzed data utilizing the QSR NVivo 8 qualitative data analysis software program The NVivo 8 software facilitated the structure and coding of data as well as my ability to determine relationships There were several critical findings that emerged from this study First I found that the classroom teachers and administrators in the school shared congruent values about adolescent literacy instruction and these shared values provided the basis for a cultural context for instruction Second I found that in this school teachers were implementing a blend of the traditional and current research based content area literacy instruction that has been identified by researchers as being successful in promoting the development of adolescent literacy Last I found that the school s infrastructure was supportive of content area literacy and provided professional development and opportunities for faculty to collaborate around literacy instruction which reinforced the implementation of content literacy across the curriculum Understanding the ways content area teachers support the development of adolescents literacy skills in a specific school culture as presented in this study provides information on the extent to which the school context helps the advancement of literacy skills The work and dedication required for establishing an integrated literacy approach across content areas is substantial requiring conceptual changes and a new awareness among all administrators and staff of how a general school culture can advance or undermine the growth of literacy skills Thus integrating content area literacy instruction in the middle schools is a complex process that will require teacher education collaboration and a commitment to change Overall extended literacy instruction in the content area is necessary so that adolescents can handle the demands of our knowledge based society as well as acquire positive experiences in school at work and in the global economy
