Reading Specialists and Literacy Coaches in the Real World Brenda A. Shearer, DeBorah A. Carr, MaryEllen Vogt, 2018-07-23 Now more than ever the roles and responsibilities of today's literacy professionals are expanding. Many recent developments require a closer look at the changing careers of reading specialists, coaches, and administrators, leading to an emphasis on increased collaboration and coaching integration of standards and student improvement initiatives. Both scholarly and practical, Reading Specialists and Literacy Coaches in the Real World provides the support and guidance both literacy and content area teachers need. The learning goals and outcomes in each chapter are aligned with ILA's Standards for the Preparation of Literacy Professionals 2017, providing opportunities for group inquiry and new perspectives on professional learning. The authors examine the historical, political, and social forces that shape evidence-based practice and incorporate significant developments in intervention, assessment, and adolescent literacy. Their impact on instruction and the needs of students are studied in conjunction with RtI, MTSS, programs, progress monitoring, and differentiation. Instructional technologies related to twenty-first-century literacies, updated information about effective academic language instruction for English learners, and a moral imperative for fostering equity, social justice, and global perspectives. The Fourth Edition also provides Resource Materials to support the text, giving it a great deal of flexibility to explore projects for portfolios and self-assessment. In the real world, as learners among learners, literacy professionals use their experiences and voices for advocacy to help prepare students for success in their lives and careers.

Reading Comprehension Research and Testing in the U.S. Arlette Ingram Willis, 2012-09-10 This book challenges traditional sanctioned and official histories of reading comprehension by examining how ideological and cultural hegemony work to reproduce dominant ideologies through education in general and reading comprehension research and testing specifically. Willis analyzes the ideological and cultural foundations that underpin concepts, theories, research, tests, and interpretations and connects these to the broader social and political contexts within U.S. history in which reading comprehension research and testing have evolved. The reconstruction of a history of reading comprehension research and testing in this way demystifies past and current assumptions about the interconnections among researchers, reading comprehension research, and standardized reading comprehension tests. A promising vision of the future of reading comprehension research and testing emerges, one that is more complex, multidimensional, inclusive, and socially just. Reading Comprehension Research and Testing in the U.S. aims to revolutionize how reading comprehension is conceived, theorized, tested, and interpreted for all children. This is a critically relevant volume for educational researchers, teacher educators, school administrators, teachers, policy makers, and all those concerned with school literacy and educational equity.

Multimodal Learning for the 21st Century Adolescent Thomas W. Bean, Tom Bean, 2010 Energize your teaching by infusing new ways to reach your 21st-century adolescent learners. Thomas Bean's friendly conversational style, with references to surf culture, adds a level of accessibility and authenticity to the research-based and classroom-tested strategies and instructional practices. Brimming with information about why creative and collaborative learning across the content areas is important to foster 21st century skills this book also expands the definition of text to encompass multimodal elements including print visuals audio and other dimensions This resource is aligned to the interdisciplinary themes from the Partnership for 21st Century Skills and supports the Common Core State Standards Constructions of Literacy Elizabeth Birr Moje,David G. O'Brien,2000-08-01

Constructions of Literacy explores and represents through a series of cases and commentaries how and why secondary school teachers and students use literacy in formal and informal learning settings As used in the context of this book secondary literacy refers to speaking listening reading writing and performing It also refers to how these processes or events are constructed negotiated and used for specific purposes by teachers and students as they engage in various classroom school and community practices and interactions The authors operate from a stance that literacy is socially culturally and historically constructed They recognize that there are many different perspectives on how that construction occurs some arguing for institutional and structural influences others suggesting that people have some degree of agency within the constraints imposed by larger structures A distinguishing feature of the volume is that the contributors explore and make explicit differing perspectives on literacy as a social construction The volume is built around case studies of secondary school teachers and students literacy practices inside and outside of schools The cases include diverse critical cultural feminist interpretive phenomenological and postmodern theoretical and epistemological perspectives and research methodologies making this one of the first collections of studies in secondary content area classrooms conducted from multiple perspectives It concludes with two Commentaries one by Donna Alvermann and one by David Bloome in which they discuss and critique the contributions made from the different perspectives and grapple with how they simultaneously illuminate and confuse issues in literacy theory research and practice Preservice and in service teachers school professionals and researchers in literacy education secondary education and curriculum theory will find this book stimulating and informative It will help them analyze the complexities of secondary literacy teaching and learning and examine their own understandings of literacy within their own literacy contexts Differentiated Literacy Strategies for Student Growth and Achievement in Grades 7-12
