Teaching Reading in Content Areas Harold L. Herber, 1970 By the time an elementary or secondary school student has finished a course much of what he has learned may already be outdated Clearly learning of facts cannot be the main goal of formal education Students must be prepared to understand key concepts and know how to acquire further knowledge on their own This practical guide book for elementary and secondary school teachers is founded on two basic premises 1 Students need to be taught how to learn and 2 too few teachers know how to guide their students learning to develop content and process at the same time Many practice assumptive teaching giving assignments without adequate guidance and assuming students know how to learn the material assigned Teaching Reading in Content Areas is a guide to teachers of basic school subjects English social studies mathematics science who wish to teach learning skills along with subject matter At the same time it offers ways to modify suggested procedures The book is deliberately designed to give teachers the experiences they are encouraged to give their students to show them how to do what they are asked to do technical vocabulary is explained at beginnings of chapters Study guide materials accompanying chapters are like those to be used in content areas Ample illustrative lesson materials accompany explanations Procedures have been tested in the classroom by experienced teachers and specific guides to each of the basic subject areas English social studies mathematics and science are given A separate bibliography appears at the end of the book

Teaching Reading in Social Studies Jane K. Doty, Gregory N. Cameron, Mary Lee Barton, 2003 Explores thirty two strategies to help improve social studies learning and achievement including vocabulary narrative text informational text and reflection strategies

Reading in Secondary Content Areas Zhihui Fang, Mary Schleppegrell, 2008 What does it mean to teach reading in the context of the middle and high school classroom Don't students already know how to read by the time they get to secondary school And how can a busy teacher take time away from the packed curriculum of science history mathematics or language arts to teach reading This book presents a linguistic approach to teaching reading in different subjects an approach that focuses on language itself Central to this approach is a view that knowledge is constructed in and through language and that language changes with changes in knowledge As students move from elementary to secondary schools they encounter specialized knowledge and engage in new contexts of learning in all subjects This means that the language of secondary school learning is quite different from the language of the elementary years While in the elementary years the subject matter of reading materials is often close to students everyday life experiences the curriculum of secondary school deals with knowledge that is removed from students personal lives and everyday contexts The language that constructs this more specialized knowledge thus tends to be more abstract technical information laden and hierarchically organized than the more familiar and friendly language that students typically encounter during the elementary years Students need to develop specialized literacies literacy relevant to each content area as well as a critical literacy they can use across subject areas to engage with reflect on and assess specialized and advanced knowledge This functional language analysis approach is shown using actual secondary social studies science and math textbooks and using a literary text

Teaching Reading in Social Studies Jane K. Doty, Mary Lee Barton, 2003 Explores the challenges of reading in the context of mathematics Literacy Instruction in the Content Areas Patricia L. Anders, Barbara J. Guzzetti, 2020-07-24 Like its predecessor Literacy Instruction in the Content Areas Second Edition is written for undergraduate graduate and in service teachers who want to integrate literacy processes into their content area instruction In addition to extensive updating of earlier material this new edition extends its coverage to include new chapters on adolescents out of school literacy experiences and their in school preferences digital resources for content learning and considerations for the reading specialist In doing so however the authors have tried to maintain the brevity stylistic clarity and classroom focus of the earlier volume Key features of this important new book include Teaching Flexibility Although written with the needs of pre service teachers in mind theory and research are treated in sufficient depth to make the book suitable for graduate courses and for teacher study groups It is also appropriate for secondary reading specialists or literacy coaches responsible for establishing or maintaining a school wide literacy program Changes in New Edition All chapters have been reorganized and most of the text rewritten In addition new chapters not usually included in content area reading texts were added These cover 1 adolescents out of school literacy experiences and in school preferences 2 digital resources for content learning and 3 considerations for the reading specialist Socio Cultural Perspective Like other volumes in the Literacy Teaching Series the perspective of this one is socio cultural and constructivist It recognizes that classroom teaching and learning are closely intertwined with surrounding school and community cultures as well as the culture and language of the subject being studied Likewise literacy is not simply a matter of reading and writing but involves using multiple literacies to negotiate and construct meaning Practical Orientation Although supporting theory and research are included in all chapters instructional strategies with illustrative examples from practicing teachers are included in most chapters Each chapter concludes with Application Activities and From Our Professional Library references Strategies for Content Area Reading Ghristine Orciuch, 2003 Content Area Reading and Learning Diane Lapp, James Flood, Nancy Farnan, 2016-11-18 How can teachers make content area learning more accessible to their students This text addresses instructional issues and provides a wealth of classroom strategies to help all middle and secondary teachers effectively enable their students to develop both content concepts and strategies for continued learning The goal is to help teachers model through excellent instruction the importance of lifelong content area learning This working textbook provides students maximum interaction with the information strategies and examples presented in each chapter This book is organized around five themes Content Area Reading An Overview The Teacher and the Text The Students The Instructional Program School
