The trip to Mars can only be understood through Black Americans
I say, the trip to Mars can only be understood through Black Americans

Nikki Giovanni, "Quilting the Black-Eyed Peas"²

I begin this paper with two excerpts from African American poetry: The first evokes a past in which blacks were possessions; the second, a future in which they are interplanetary pilgrims. To connect them, I'd like to offer a quote not from verse but from the public discourse of African American environmental justice activist, Van Jones: "In my neighborhood, you go around talking to people about polar bears, they are not feeling you." Van Jones is from Oakland, California, and the neighborhood about which he speaks is poor, urban, and black³.

Unlike the verses I referenced from Clifton and Giovanni, Jones speaks of the current moment – of polar bears, the mascot of our present ecological crisis, and of poor blacks who are presumably too beleaguered by 21st century injustice to care. According to Jones, if you want to get poor urban black people involved in the environmental movement, you can't talk about polar bears or endangered trees or imperiled seascapes. One must pass over the subject of spotted owls and talk about how the toxic industries concentrated in inner city neighborhoods give children asthma⁴. One should keep things anthropocentric as she makes her pitch because poor urban blacks don't care about polar bears.

Du Plessis,2004-01-01 This title is part of an established Series which introduces various legal systems of the world It provides an authoritative and accessible overview of the main branches of South African public private and commercial law Offering insight into the rich system of South African law this title will be of particular interest to the international legal community The South African legal system has not only developed fascinating mixtures of civil law and common law rules over more than a century but has also experienced a post apartheid South Africa Of particular interest is the way in which so many branches of law have been infused by basic constitutional values Many of the contributors have published work in their own fields and have considerable experience of presenting their subject matter in a broader comparative perspective The succinct and balanced nature of the contributions makes this title attractive to a wide audience of academics students and practitioners with an interest in this remarkable legal system Reading Modern Law Ruth Buchanan, Stewart Motha, Sundhya Pahuja, 2012-05-31 Reading Modern Law identifies and elaborates upon key critical methodologies for reading and writing about law in modernity The force of law rests on determinate and localizable authorizations as well as an expansive capacity to encompass what has not been pre figured by an order of rules The key question this dynamic of law raises is how legal forms might be deployed to confront and disrupt injustice The urgency of this question must not eclipse the care its complexity demands This book offers a critical methodology for addressing the many challenges thrown up by that question whilst testifying to its complexity The essays in this volume engagements direct or oblique with the work of Peter Fitzpatrick chart a mode of resisting the proliferation of social scientific methods as much as geo political empire The authors elaborate a critical and interdisciplinary treatment of law and modernity and outline the pivotal role of sovereignty in contemporary formations of power both national and international From various overlapping vantage points therefore Reading Modern Law interrogates law s relationship to power as well as its relationship to the critical work of reading and writing about law in modernity Arbitration in Africa Eugene Cotran, 1996-12-23 Arbitration in Africa contains the edited and where applicable updated papers of the inaugural conference of the Pan African Council of the London Court of International Arbitration held in Nairobi Kenya on 7 8 December 1994 This title is the first to focus attention on the role and development of arbitration within Africa and provides the reader with details of the laws of arbitration in a wide variety of African countries Part One contains a general overview of international commercial arbitration worldwide The remainder of the book focuses on arbitration within nations throughout Commonwealth Africa East West Central and Southern Arab North Africa and Francophone Africa Issues raised include the historical background of arbitration in the various African states The status and development of arbitration challenges to arbitration As well as regional and international arbitration legislation and institutions Appendix One contains the text of the laws of those African countries which have adopted the UNCITRAL Model Law Appendix Two provides a list of African countries which are party To The New York Convention of 1958 The Convention on the Settlement of Investment Disputes ICSID of 1965 And The Convention establishing the Multilateral Investment Guarantee Agency HISA of 1985 The contributors to this volume are all highly experienced in the field of international arbitration and arbitration law in Africa The work includes a foreword by Lord Mustill This title is of interest to arbitrators practising in or involved with Africa To investors and business people with interests in the region and to those interested in arbitration generally Law and Literature Reconsidered Austin Sarat, 2008-02-29 Once hailed as a promising new way to think about law and as opening a vital conversation about literature the question is whether the law and literature enterprise has lived up to its initial promise This is a contemporary study of law and literature It includes contributions by an international group of leading scholars Reading in Race and Ethnic Relations Anthony H. Richmond, 2013-10-22 Readings in Race and Ethnic Relations is a part of a series of Readings in Sociology This book is composed of four parts with a total of 17 chapters Part 1 explains the concepts of race racism and identity Parts 2 and 3 elucidate the relationship of race with religion urbanization and ethnic stratification Lastly Part 4 explores how race is associated with politics and conflict One of the distinctive features of this book is the inclusion of some articles translated into English from other languages Linguists communicators and other people interested in this field of study will find this book invaluable

Introduction to African Politics Leslie Rubin, Brian Weinstein, 1977 The introduction to African Politics is clearly the best written most comprehensive and most genuinely comparative study of African politics currently available It is an ideal text around which to structure an introductory course its generalizations deserve as well the careful critical attention of specialists in the field Publishers
