London in Cinema Charlotte Brunsdon, 2019-07-25 Charlotte Brunsdon's illuminating study explores the variety of cinematic Londons that appear in films made since 1945 Brunsdon traces the familiar ways that film makers establish that a film is set in London by use of recognisable landmarks and the city's shorthand iconography of red buses and black taxis as well as the ways in which these icons are avoided She looks at London weather fog and rain and everyday locations like the pub and the housing estate while also examining the recurring patterns of representation associated with films set in the East and West Ends of London from Spring in Park Lane 1948 to Mona Lisa 1986 and from Night and the City 1950 to From Hell 2001 Brunsdon provides a detailed analysis of a selection of films exploring their contribution to the cinematic geography of London and showing the ways in which feature films have responded to and created changing views of the city She traces London's transformation from imperial capital to global city through the different ways in which the local is imagined in films ranging from Ealing comedies to Pressure 1974 as well as through the shifting imagery of the River Thames and the Docks She addresses the role of cinematic genres such as horror and film noir in the constitution of the cinematic city as well as the recurrence of figures such as the cockney the gangster and the housewife Challenging the view that London is not a particularly cinematic city Brunsdon demonstrates that many London set films offer their own meditation on the complex relationships between the cinema and the city

London George Hamilton Cunningham, 1927

The Settlement Patterns of Britain Nick Green, 2022-06-08 In writing The Settlement Patterns of Britain Nick Green was inspired by the short story genre His book is a collection of eight non-fiction short stories or essays where the characters are the places some of which appear more than once usually as bit part players occasionally as the main protagonist Preceded by a prologue describing Britain's prehistory as a European peninsula each essay covers a fixed period in the history of the development of Britain's settlement patterns sometimes long more often quite short beginning around 2 500 BC and ending about one hundred years in the future Nick Green chose those periods that are particularly instructive in revealing how settlement patterns come to exist in the form they do and how they might develop in the future Settlement patterns are not just about where a place is but about how that place relates to others They wax and wane with circumstance and around each settlement's fixed core the patterns of living and working shift constantly driven by forces beyond the control of any individual town or city or village From Bronze Age communities to computer simulations from the mediaeval wool trade to the hyper-networked society from Viking invasions to the post-industrial era the essays cover a broad sweep of history They appear in chronological order but are not intended to provide a continuous linear historical narrative nor do they each essay is freestanding so they can be read in whatever order the reader prefers

Rural Settlements and Society in Anglo-Saxon England Helena Hamerow, 2012-07-05 The first major synthesis of the evidence for Anglo-Saxon settlements from across England and throughout the Anglo-Saxon period and a study of what it reveals about the communities who built and lived in them
