

A scenic view of a European river town, likely Colmar in France. The image shows a canal with a small bridge in the foreground. On the left, there are half-timbered houses with white walls and dark wooden frames. On the right, there are more houses, some with balconies, and a large green tree. The sky is blue with white clouds. The text "RIVIERA" is written in a large, blue, serif font, and "RIVER CRUISES" is written in a smaller, blue, sans-serif font below it.

With the publication of Riviera to the Rhine the Center of Military History completes its series of operational histories treating the activities of the U S Army's combat forces during World War II. This volume examines the least known of the major units in the European theater: General Jacob L. Devers' 6th Army Group. Under General Devers' leadership, two armies—the U S Seventh Army under General Alexander M. Patch and the First French Army led by General Jean de Lattre de Tassigny—landed on the Mediterranean coast near Marseille in August 1944, cleared the enemy out of southern France, and then turned east and joined with army groups under Field Marshal Sir Bernard L. Montgomery and General Omar N. Bradley in the final assault on Germany. In detailing the campaign of these Riviera-based armies, the authors have concentrated on the operational level of war, paying special attention to the problems of joint combined and special operations and to the significant roles of logistics, intelligence, and personnel policies in these endeavors. They have also examined in detail deception efforts at the tactical and operational levels, deep battle penetrations, river crossing efforts, combat in built-up areas, and tactical innovations at the combined arms level.

A WW2 anniversary commemorative edition examines a significant portion of the Allied drive across N. Europe, focusing on the vital role played in that drive by the U S 6th Army Group commanded by Gen. Jacob Devers. Its 2 major components—the Amer 7th Army under Gen. Alex. Patch and the French 1st Army under Gen. Jean de Lattre de Tassigny—had these forces not existed, Eisenhower's 2 northern armies would have been stretched much thinner. Covers the period from Aug 44 to early March 45, details the Allied landings in S. France, the capture of Toulon, Marseilles, the drive north through the Rhone River valley following the junction of the Riviera forces with those moving east from the Normandy beachhead. Excerpt from Riviera to the Rhine: In detailing the campaign of these Riviera-based armies, the authors have concentrated on the operational level of war, paying special attention to the problems of joint combined and special operations and to the significant roles of logistics, intelligence, and personnel policies in these endeavors. They have also examined in detail deception efforts at the tactical and operational levels, deep battle penetrations, river crossing efforts, combat in built-up areas, and tactical innovations at the combined arms level. Such concepts are of course very familiar to today's military students, and the fact that this volume examines them in such detail makes this study especially valuable to younger officers and noncommissioned officers. In truth, the challenges faced by military commanders half a century ago were hardly unique. That is why I particularly urge today's military students who might well face some of these same problems in future combat to study this campaign so that they might learn from their illustrious predecessors in the
