David McFetrich

Robert Adam And Kedleston:

Robert and James Adam, Architects of the Age of Enlightenment Ariyuki Kondo, 2015-10-06 During the second half of the eighteenth century British architecture moved away from the dominant school of classicism in favour of a more creative freedom of expression At the forefront of this change were architect brothers Robert and James Adam Kondo s work places them within the context of eighteenth century intellectual thought Robert Adam and Kedleston Leslie Harris, 1987-01-01 The Education of the Eye Peter De Bolla, 2003 The Education of the Eye examines the origins of visual culture in eighteenth century Britain setting out to reclaim visual culture for the democracy of the eye and to explain how aesthetic contemplation may once more be open to all who have eyes to look American Federal Furniture and Decorative Arts from the Watson Collection Philip D. Zimmerman, Catherine E. Hutchins, 2004 While demonstrating the high level of artistry attained by furniture makers of the period this selection in many ways reflects the evolving character of domestic life in America during a seminal period in the country s history The Architecture of Ruins Jonathan Hill, 2019-03-25 The Architecture of Ruins Designs on the Past Present and Future identifies an alternative and significant history of architecture from the sixteenth century to the twenty first century in which a building is designed occupied and imagined as a ruin This design practice conceives a monument and a ruin as creative interdependent and simultaneous themes within a single building dialectic addressing temporal and environmental questions in poetic psychological and practical terms and stimulating questions of personal and national identity nature and culture weather and climate permanence and impermanence and life and death Conceiving a building as a dialogue between a monument and a ruin intensifies the already blurred relations between the unfinished and the ruined and envisages the past the present and the future in a single architecture Structured around a collection of biographies this book conceives a monument and a ruin as metaphors for a life and means to negotiate between a self and a society Emphasising the interconnections between designers and the particular ways in which later architects learned from earlier ones the chapters investigate an evolving interdisciplinary design practice to show the relevance of historical understanding to design Like a history a design is a reinterpretation of the past that is meaningful to the present Equally a design is equivalent to a fiction convincing users to suspend disbelief We expect a history or a novel to be written in words but they can also be delineated in drawing cast in concrete or seeded in soil The architect is a physical novelist as well as a physical historian Like building sites ruins are full of potential In revealing not only what is lost but also what is incomplete a ruin suggests the future as well as the past As a stimulus to the imagination a ruin s incomplete and broken forms expand architecture s allegorical and metaphorical capacity indicating that a building can remain unfinished literally and in the imagination focusing attention on the creativity of users as well as architects Emphasising the symbiotic relations between nature and culture a building designed occupied and imagined as a ruin acknowledges the coproduction of multiple authors whether human non human or atmospheric and is an appropriate model for architecture in an era of increasing climate change Robert Adam's Country Houses Geoffrey Beard, Robert Adam, 1981 The Architecture of Robert & James Adam (1758-1794) Arthur Thomas Bolton, 1922

Architectural History Dana Arnold, 2003-09-02 Architectural history is more than just the study of buildings Architecture of the past and present remains an essential emblem of a distinctive social system and set of cultural values and as a result it has been the subject of study of a variety of disciplines But what is architectural history and how should we read it Reading Architectural History examines the historiographic and socio cultural implications of the mapping of British architectural history with particular reference to eighteenth and nineteenth century Britain Discursive essays consider a range of writings from biographical and social histories to visual surveys and guidebooks to examine the narrative structures of histories of architecture and their impact on perception and understanding of the architecture of the past Alongside this each chapter cites canonical histories juxtaposed with a range of social and cultural theorists to reveal that these writings are richer than we have perhaps recognised and that architectural production in this period can be interrogated in the same way as that from more recent past and can be read in a variety of ways The essays and texts combine to form an essential course reader for methods and critical approaches to architectural history and more generally as examples of the kind of evidence used in the formation of architectural histories while also offering a thematic introduction to architecture in Britain and its social and cultural meaning Decorative Plasterwork in Great Britain Geoffrey Beard, Jeff Orton, Richard Ireland, 2015-10-06

Decorative plasterwork was created by skilled craftsmen and for over four hundred years it has been an essential part of the interior decoration of the British country house In this detailed and comprehensive study Geoffrey Beard has created a book that will delight the eye and inform the interested reader For those who have sometimes been puzzled by the complexities of plaster decoration it will be a most useful work of reference on a fascinating art form about which no book has been published for nearly fifty years After discussing the part that patrons played in commissioning and financing these beautiful decorations a useful chapter is devoted to materials and methods of work and here the author describes the ingredients of good plaster he has studied the work of present day English plasterers and Swiss stucco restorers in order to establish precisely how the materials of plaster and stucco were composed and used Calcutta Krishna Dutta, 2003 In the popular imagination Calcutta is a packed and pestilential sprawl made notorious by the Black Hole and the works of Mother Teresa Kipling called it a City of Dreadful Night and a century later V S Naipaul Gunter Grass and Louis Malle revived its hellish image This is the place where the West first truly encountered the East Founded in the 1690s by East India Company merchants beside the Hugli River Calcutta grew into India's capital during the Raj and the second city of the British Empire Named the City of Palaces for its neoclassical mansions Calcutta was the city of Clive Hastings Macaulay and Curzon It was also home to extraordinary Bengalis such as Rabindranath Tagore the first Asian Nobel laureate and Satyajit Ray among the geniuses of world cinema Above all Calcutta renamed Kolkata in 2001 is a city of extremes where exquisite refinement rubs shoulders with coarse commercialism and political violence Krishna Dutta explores these multiple paradoxes giving personal insight into Calcutta's unique history and modern identity as reflected in its architecture literature cinema and music CITY OF ARTISTS Modern India's cultural capital home city of The Chamber Organ in Britain, 1600-1830 Michael I.

Wilson, 2017-07-05 The first edition of The English Chamber Organ was published in 1968 This new revised edition takes into account the considerable research into chamber organs that has taken place over the last thirty years Much of the book has been completely rewritten and expanded and it includes a number of organs not detailed in the first edition As its revised title suggests this new edition covers foreign made imports as well as British made organs that were sent overseas Part one comprises a series of chapters that cover the history of the chamber organ its origins and development Part two provides a general introduction to the construction of organs while part three gives detailed descriptions of 196 British chamber organs with information on their location specifications design and suggestions for further reading As a domestic instrument the chamber organ was often perceived to be as much a piece of furniture as an item of musical equipment The Chamber Organ in Britain offers an assessment of the organ as both a musical instrument and as a decorative icon An Encyclopaedia of

Fitzgerald,1904 Country Life ,1901 Country Life Illustrated ,1901 A Wealth of Buildings: Marking the Rhythm of English History Richard Barras,2016-09-23

This two volume book explores how the great buildings of England bear witness to a thousand years of the nation s history In every age investment in iconic buildings reaches a climax when the prevailing mode of production is operating most effectively surplus wealth is most plentiful and the dominant class rules supreme During such periods of stability and prosperity the demand for new buildings is strong structural and stylistic innovations abound and there is fierce competition to build for lasting fame Each such climax produces a unique vintage of hegemonic buildings that are monuments to the wealth and power of those who ruled their world This second volume presents three case studies of iconic building investment from the eighteenth century to the present day During the eighteenth century the wealth of the great landed estates funded the golden age of country house building by aristocracy and gentry During the nineteenth century the Industrial Revolution unleashed an unprecedented wave of infrastructure investment and civic building by the ascendant capitalist class Since the late twentieth century the power of global financial capital has been symbolized by the relentless rise of city centre office towers A final chapter argues that these different forms of hegemonic building are a physical manifestation of the underlying rhythm of English history
