Story, 2022-04-05 Reprint of the original first published in 1864 Housing in the Ancient Mediterranean World J. A. Baird, April Pudsey, 2022-07-21 One of the greatest benefits of studying the ancient Greek and Roman past is the ability to utilise different forms of evidence in particular both written and archaeological sources The contributors to this volume employ this evidence to examine ancient housing and what might be learned of identities families and societies but they also use it as a methodological locus from which to interrogate the complex relationship between different types of sources Chapters range from the recreation of the house as it was conceived in Homeric poetry to the decipherment of a painted Greek lekythos to build up a picture of household activities to the conjuring of the sensorial experience of a house in Pompeii Together they present a rich tapestry which demonstrates what can be gained for our understanding of ancient housing from examining the interplay between the words of ancient texts and the walls of archaeological evidence Roba Di Roma William Wetmore Story, 1864 Interpreting basic buildings Caniggia Gianfranco, Maffei Gian Luigi, 2017-09-11 This volume codifies the method to read building structures that have appeared in the past as spontaneous consciousness level in a progression of scalar sizes ranging from buildings and clusters of buildings to urban organisms and the territory Focusing on past architecture is the field of process classification that is the key to using history in working as architects in the modern world We wish to extract the laws of behaviour formation and mutation of manmade structuring on the various scales of man

s work as we consider this knowledge to be the only possible solution to the architectural crisis that has dragged on for over two centuries It results in planning based on reviving the tradition of producing buildings not as a dogmatic adaptation to past building methods but intended to contemporaneously fit our work into the continuity of laws and behaviour codified in our cultural area these laws can only be understood and consequently by carefully reading the built environment that surrounds us
