dispute surrounding the relationship of religion and state a return to first principles The traditional position writes Hasson is that our fundamental human rights including those secured by the First Amendment are endowed to us by the Creator and that it would be perilous to permit the government ever to repudiate that point America has steadfastly taken the position that there is a Supreme Being who is the source of our rights and the author of our equality It has repeated that point for well over two hundred years throughout all branches and levels of government Never mind says the secularist challenge God is to put it mildly religious Religion has no place in Government So God has no place in Government It s just that simple But for the government to say there is no creator who endows us with rights Hasson argues is to do more than simply tinker with one of the most famous one liners in history it is to change the starting point of our whole explanation of who we are as Americans He proposes a solution straight from the founding the government acknowledges the existence of God who is the source of our rights philosophically but not religiously This idea of the Philosophers God is a conception of God based not on faith but on reason Hasson suggests that by recognizing the distinction between the creator of the Declaration of Independence and the God of our faith traditions we may be able to move past the culture wars over religion that have plagued the country In Believers Thinkers and Founders Hasson examines the idea of the Philosophers God while looking at a host of issues including the Pledge of Allegiance prayer at public events and prayer in public schools as he demonstrates how we can still be one nation under God
