Experience and History David Carr, 2014 Carr's purpose is to outline a distinctively phenomenological approach to history History is usually associated with social existence and its past and thus his inquiry focuses on our experience of the social world and of its temporality How does history bridge the gap which separates it from its object the past Against this background a phenomenological approach based on the concept of experience can be proposed as a means of solving this problem or at least addressing it in a way that takes us beyond the notion of a gap between present and past

The Nation, 1908

Micah Bob Becking, 2023-06-27 A new translation and commentary on the biblical book of Micah that proposes a convincing new theory of its composition history While the biblical book of Micah is most famous for its images of peace swords forged into to plowshares spears turned into pruning hooks and its passages of prophetic hope the book is largely composed of prophecies of ruin The historical Micah who likely lived in the late eighth century BCE is the first recorded prophet to predict the fateful fall of Jerusalem and he also foretells the destruction of the regions of Samaria and Judah in addition to the more well known promises of Judah's eventual restoration Bob Becking translates the Hebrew text anew and illuminates the book's most important elements including its literary features political context and composition history Drawing on ancient Near Eastern comparative evidence archaeological notes and inscriptions Becking surveys the debates surrounding the book's interpretation and argues that it be regarded as three separate source texts the early first chapter a large middle section containing a proto apocalyptic alternating prophetic futurology collected and molded by a later redactor and an added section advocating for legal reform under Josiah
