Recollections Carl Romney, 2012-04-23 This memoir outlines the life of a scientist spanning much of the twentieth century It began at a time before radios were found in most American homes and before the advent of talking pictures His interest in science was born at an early age sparked by his mother as she introduced him to the stars in a dark Utah sky Early experiences and training were much the same as for any other boy at the time But with the beginning of war in Europe and the U S response by instituting universal conscription the draft he realized the importance of education in fulfilling his military obligation and enlisted in a Navy training program Navy service took him to Chicago and Southern California and eventually to little known Peleliu Island in the Western Pacific a foretaste of a life of frequent travel to follow World War II was followed all too soon by the retreat of the Soviet Union behind an Iron Curtain of secrecy a massive buildup of conventional forces and armed occupation of neighboring countries It became essential to know when they succeeded in building the atomic bomb This book is a first hand account in non technical terms of some of the ways in which this was accomplished This was followed by attempts to ban the bomb or at least to ban nuclear testing The author was fortunate to be near the center of U S efforts in many of these attempts and the book describes important activities and events that ultimately led to achieving the lesser of these goals

Fishing Different Jake Bussolini, 2016-03-22 This book is the seventh in a series written by Jake Bussolini Because of the positive response received from his previous books Jake took the advice of many of his readers and extracted the many interesting and sometimes controversial subjects from his past books did a great deal of updating on his research and packaged the new material into this book Many of the subjects in this book are truly controversial for many experienced anglers who have been using the same angling techniques and fishing myths for most of their life The author has examined each of these myths performing detailed tests where needed to prove that scientifically the myths are no longer valid and may never have been The title of this book Fishing Different implies that the book contains discussions of different and unique ways to approach the sport that will make the angling experience more interesting and of course more successful for all anglers of all ages To make the reading experience more interesting the author has used history and historical events to support his theories and processes This is a unique way to increase the reading enjoyment of this book
