Pearce,1965 Critical study of Mary Austin s fiction essays poems and plays The Land of Little Rain Mary Hunter Austin,1950-01-01 This is the nature of that country There are hills rounded blunt burned squeezed up out of chaos chrome and vermilion painted aspiring to the snow line Between the hills lie high level looking plains full of intolerable sun glare or narrow valleys drowned in a blue haze The hill surface is streaked with ash drift and black unweathered lava flows After rains water accumulates in the hollows of small closed valleys and evaporating leaves hard dry levels of pure desertness that get the local name of dry lakes Where the mountains are steep and the rains heavy the pool is never quite dry but dark and bitter rimmed about with the efflorescence of alkaline deposits A thin crust of it lies along the marsh over the vegetating area which has neither beauty nor freshness In the broad wastes open to the wind the sand drifts in hummocks about the stubby shrubs and between them the soil shows saline traces The sculpture of the hills here is more wind than water work though the quick storms do sometimes scar them past many a year s redeeming In all the Western desert edges there are essays in miniature at the famed terrible Grand Ca on to which if you keep on long enough in this country you will come at last Since this is a hill country one expects to find springs but not to depend upon them for when found they are often brackish and unwholesome or maddening slow dribbles in a thirsty soil Here you find the hot sink of Death Valley or high rolling districts where the air has always a tang of frost Here are the long heavy winds and breathless calms on the tilted mesas where dust devils dance whirling up into a wide pale sky Here you have no rain when all the earth cries for it or quick downpours called cloud bursts for violence A land of lost rivers with little in it to love yet a land that once visited must be come back to inevitably If it were not so there would be little told of it This is the country of three seasons From June on to November it lies hot still and unbearable sick with violent unrelieving storms then on until April chill quiescent drinking its scant rain and scatterer snows from April to the hot season again blossoming radiant and seductive These months are only approximate later or earlier the rain laden wind may drift up the water gate of the Colorado from the Gulf and the land sets its seasons by the rain Mary Hunter Austin: A Female

Writer's Protest Against the First World War in the United States Jowan A. Mohammed,2021-09-07 Mary Hunter Austin 1868 1934 is often referred to as an important American writer of the early decades of the 20th century with much of her work concerning nature and Native American culture Hunter Austin was also considered to be one of the early feminist writers whose works had an impact on the redefinition of gender roles during the First World War This study examines the feminist perception of her later years connecting feminist history to questions related to memory through a study of literature politics and interpretations of the past both feminist and gendered It demonstrates how far the perception and remembrance of the past are determined by later agendas and considerations This work is an insightful and detailed study meant to expand knowledge within the field of collective memory about Mary Hunter Austin s life and work alike This book is intended for those with a general interest in feminism socialism World War One and gender issues Academics and specialists in the field will value new research on a crucial figure in American literary history Essential Novelists - Mary Hunter Austin Mary Hunter Austin, August Nemo, 2021-04-29 Welcome to the Essential Novelists book series where we present to you the best works of remarkable authors For this book the literary critic August Nemo has chosen the two most important and meaningful novels of Mary Austin which are A Woman of Genius and The Lovely Lady Mary Austin was an American writer One of the early nature writers of the American Southwest describing the fauna flora and people as well as evoking the mysticism and spirituality of the region between the High Sierra and the Mojave Desert of southern California Novels selected for this book A Woman of Genius The Lovely Lady This is one of many books in the series Essential Novelists If you liked this book look for the other titles in the series we are sure you will like some of the authors The Land of Little Rain Mary Hunter Mary Hunter Austin, 2017-04-30 How is this book unique Font adjustments biography included Unabridged 100% Original content Illustrated About The Land of Little Rain by Mary Hunter Austin Mary Austin's Land of Little Rain first published in 1903 is considered by many to be one of the foundational texts in environmental writing now studied as a classic in the literature that sought to describe the complexity of the American continent Like John Muir who wrote so intimately of the High Sierra that vast acreages have been preserved through the knowledge he shared the work of Mary Austin has allowed those who will never travel there a deep feeling for the special beauties of the Southwest Her poetic sensibility expressed in an inimitable prose paint a timeless portrait of that vast dry expanse the Mojave northward from the Mexican border to Death Valley with the Eastern Sierra to the west and the Colorado River to the east Told with power and distinction sketches reproducing with vivid reality life in the arid region of Southeastern California Not often does a book of such unusual quality or so picturesque a character come before the reader Mrs Austin writes as one who is in touch with all the moods of the wild which stretches around her The Brooklyn Eagle The charm of the whole lies in three qualities the novelty and interest of the subject the picturesque texture of the author's mind and in a style which is both cultivated and racy and adapted to conveying her unusual sense of beauty The Nation There is in it much keen observation much shrewd suggestion and no end of delight Science The snatches of description here and there vivid in color and scent living pictures of mountain nooks open ranges and herders camps and carrying with them the subtle perfume of earth and woods The book is a veritable call of the wild and one can hardly read it without feeling a longing for the free and open life it describes The Boston Transcript A work which has given us great delight There is a smack of Stevenson about the book and as a literary work it is vivid The London Spectator Selected Short Works of Mary Hunter Austin Mary Hunter Austin, 2020-09-28 THE first time of my hearing of her was at Temblor We had come all one day between blunt whitish bluffs rising from mirage water with a thick pale wake of dust billowing from the wheels all the dead wall of the foothills sliding and shimmering with heat to learn that the Walking Woman had passed us somewhere in the dizzying dimness going down to the Tulares on her own feet

We heard of her again in the Carrisal and again at Adobe Station where she had passed a week before the shearing and at last I had a glimpse of her at the Eighteen Mile House as I went hurriedly northward on the Mojave stage and afterward sheepherders at whose camps she slept and cowboys at rodeos told me as much of her way of life as they could understand Like enough they told her as much of mine That was very little She was the Walking Woman and no one knew her name but because she was a sort of whom men speak respectfully they called her to her face Mrs Walker and she answered to it if she was so inclined She came and went about our western world on no discoverable errand and whether she had some place of refuge where she lay by in the interim or whether between her seldom unaccountable appearances in our quarter she went on steadily walking was never learned She came and went oftenest in a kind of muse of travel which the untrammelled space begets or at rare intervals flooding wondrously with talk never of herself but of things she had known and seen She must have seen some rare happenings too by report She was at Maverick the time of the Big Snow and at Tres Pinos when they brought home the body of Morena and if anybody could have told whether de Borba killed Mariana for spite or defense it would have been she only she could not be found when most wanted She was at Tunawai at the time of the cloud burst and if she had cared for it could have known most desirable things of the ways of trail making burrow habiting small things 7

The Basket Woman Mary Austin, 2009-01-01. All of these stories are so nearly true that you need not be troubled in the least about believing them. So begins author Mary Austin in the preface to her 1904 collection of fanciful tales for children of the myths and legends of the first peoples of the Sierra Nevada and Yosemite region. Austin, an amateur naturalist and a keen observer of human influence on the landscape, here regales us with the charming stories of The Basket Woman, The Stream That Ran Away, The Cheerful Glacier, The Christmas Tree, The Fire Bringer, The White Barked Pine, and others.

American author MARY HUNTER AUSTIN (1868-1934) wrote numerous novels, poems, plays, and works of criticism, much of it centered on feminist, environmental, and multicultural issues. She is best remembered for her writing on matters concerning Native American rights and the deserts of the American Southwest.
