Mass Media Education in Transition Thomas Dickson, 1999-08 An overview of the changes taking place in media education for educators and administrators in comm depts

Mass Media Education in Transition Thomas Dickson, 1999-08-01 Media educators have long been debating the nature and purpose of media education Issues relating to new technologies and the changing state of the media industry are ongoing concerns but some of the most difficult questions go to the actual structure of media education itself Is it best represented as an integrated field Should it merge with other communication subfields or potentially split into several separate fields Media practitioners complicate matters further by questioning the necessity for media education at all The continued consideration of and reaction to these issues will have a significant effect on media related education and its associated practices In Mass Media Education in Transition Thomas Dickson gives careful consideration to the state of media education and its future directions He provides a history of mass media related education as well as an overview of the major issues affecting media education at the end of the 20th century He incorporates the visions of media education leaders as to the possible directions the field may take in the next century and includes in his discussion information that has been previously unknown or not readily available to media educators This volume provides a broad view of the major issues affecting all aspects of media education print and broadcast journalism advertising public relations and media studies It also offers detailed insights as to the possibilities that lie ahead as the field continues to develop a new professionalism or a return to a prior vision of media related education or possibly something quite different

Journalism Education Between Market Dependence and Social Responsibility Hugo Bigi, 2012

Journalism 1908 Betty Houchin Winfield, 2008-09-03 The year 1908 was not remarkable by most accounts but it was an auspicious year for journalism As newspapers sought to recover from big city yellow journalism and circulation wars that reached their boiling point a few years earlier during the Spanish American War press clubs began to champion higher education And schools dedicated to journalism education led by the University of Missouri began to emerge Now sanctioned by universities journalism could teach acceptable behavior and establish credentials It was nothing less than the birth of a profession Journalism 1908 opens a window on mass communication a century ago It tells how the news media in the United States were fundamentally changed by the creation of academic departments and schools of journalism by the founding of the National Press Club and by exciting advances that included early newsreels the introduction of halftones to print and even changes in newspaper design Journalism educator Betty Houchin Winfield has gathered a team of well known media scholars all specialists in particular areas of journalism history to examine the status of their profession in 1908 news organizations business practices media law advertising forms of coverage from sports to arts and more Various facets of journalism are explored and situated within the country's history and the movement toward reform and professionalism not only formalized standards and ethics but also labor issues concerning pay hours and job differentiation that came with the emergence of new technologies This overview of a watershed year is national in scope examining early journalism education programs not only at Missouri but also at such schools as Colgate Washington and Lee Wisconsin and Columbia It also reviews the status of women in the profession and looks beyond big city papers to Progressive Era magazines the immigrant press and African American publications Journalism 1908 commemorates a century of progress in the media and given the place of Missouri's School of Journalism in that history is an appropriate celebration of that school's centennial It is a lode of information about journalism education history that will surprise even many of those in the field and marks a seminal year with lasting significance for the profession

Journalism Education, Training and Employment Bob Franklin, Donica Mensing, 2010-12-14 During this period of rapid and significant change in journalistic practices journalism educators are re-examining their own profession and contributing to the invention of new models and practices This edited volume of studies by respected international scholars describes the diverse issues journalism educators are grappling with and the changes they are making in purpose and practice The book is organized into three sections education training and employment that explore common themes How the assumptions embedded in journalism education are being examined and revised in the light of transformative changes in communication How the definitions of journalism and journalists are broadening in scope and what this means for educators How newsrooms and training programs around the world are being re-examined and made more effective An introductory essay and section summaries provide context for the thirteen chapters that constitute the collection The section on journalism education explores fundamental ways educators are seeking to make their institutions and practices stronger and more responsive The section on training includes case studies of journalism training programs in sub-Saharan Africa Turkey Sweden and the U S The final section examines the job prospects and employment market for journalism students with data from the U S U K Australia and Sweden The scope of issues considered in the book makes it a valuable resource for journalism scholars from around the world as well as doctoral students journalism and communication administrators in universities organizations that fund journalism training programs and practitioners interested in understanding employment and education trends

What's Wrong with University Jeff Rybak, 2007-05 Students invest a lot of time and money in a university education but all too often don't get what they came for This book addresses the most pressing concerns for undergraduate students and helps them cope with the university system The author illustrates that a university has five distinct functions which are often in conflict with each other students often find themselves with different goals and motivations than their peers and with institutional features designed around the needs of those other students As a result they are frequently frustrated by their experiences This guide explains how a university really works and provides advice on how all students can overcome these internal conflicts to get what they most want from the university experience

The Future of Journalism Bob Franklin, 2013-09-13 The future of journalism is hotly contested and highly uncertain reflecting developments in media technologies shifting business strategies for online news changing media organisational and regulatory structures the fragmentation of audiences and a growing public concern about some aspects of tabloid journalism practices and reporting as well as broader political sociological and cultural changes These developments have combined to impoverish the flow of existing revenues available to fund journalism impact radically on traditional journalism professional practices while simultaneously generating an increasingly frenzied search for sustainable and equivalent funding and from a wide range of sources to nurture and deliver quality journalism in the future This book brings together journalists and distinguished academic specialists from around the globe to present the findings from their research and to discuss the future of journalism the shifting quality of its products its wide ranging sources of finance as well as the economic and democratic consequences of the significant changes confronting Journalism The Future of Journalism details the challenges facing the press in contemporary societies and provides essential reading for everyone interested in the role of journalism in shaping and sustaining literate civil and democratic societies This book consists of special issues from Journalism Studies and Journalism Practice      Trial and Error in Journalism and Communication Education Sandra Marinho, Pilar Sánchez-García, 2021-12-09 This book explores the challenges of teaching journalism and communication in an ever changing media environment It considers the classroom as a space of trial and error and therefore of necessary innovation It brings together professors and students from different universities across Europe to recount their teaching and learning experiences The book also provides training proposals which offer an insight into the ongoing international debate on which teaching trends and practices can be effective in the digital environment As such the text will contribute to strengthening the university teaching of professional communicators based on technological innovation and critical thinking

The Origins of Television News in America Mike Conway, 2009 This is the first in depth look at the development of the television newscast the most popular source of news for over forty five years During the 1940s most journalists ignored or dismissed television leaving the challenge to a small group of people working above New York City's Grand Central Terminal Without the pressures of ratings sponsors company oversight or many viewers the group refused to recreate newspapers radio or newsreels on the new medium They experimented argued tested and eventually settled on a format to exploit television's strengths This book documents that process challenging common myths including the importance of a popular anchor and television's inability to communicate non visual stories and crediting those whose work was critical in the formation of television as a news format and illustrating the pressures and professional roadblocks facing those who dare question journalistic traditions of any era Publisher      Mass Media James B. Martin, 2002 Mass media has become an integral part of the human experience News travels around the world in a split second affecting people in other countries in untold ways Although being on top of the news may be good at least for news junkies mass media also transmits values or the lack thereof condenses complex events and thoughts to simplified sound bites and often ignores the essence of an event or story The selective bibliography gathers the books and magazine literature over the previous ten years while providing
