Perkins,2009-10-05 Angela Davis Assata Shakur a k a JoAnne Chesimard and Elaine Brown are the only women activists of the Black Power movement who have published book length autobiographies In bearing witness to that era these militant newsmakers wrote in part to educate and to mobilize their anticipated readers In this way Davis s Angela Davis An Autobiography 1974 Shakur s Assata 1987 and Brown s A Taste of Power A Black Woman s Story 1992 can all be read as extensions of the writers political activism during the 1960s Margo V Perkins s critical analysis of their books is less a history of the movement or of women s involvement in it than an exploration of the politics of storytelling for activists who choose to write their lives Perkins examines how activists use autobiography to connect their lives to those of other activists across historical periods to emphasize the link between the personal and the political and to construct an alternative history that challenges dominant or conventional ways of knowing The histories constructed by these three women call attention to the experiences of women in revolutionary struggle particularly to the ways their experiences have differed from men s The women s stories are told from different perspectives and provide different insights into a movement that has been much studied from the masculine perspective At times they fill in complement challenge or converse with the stories told by their male counterparts and in doing so hint at how the present and future can be made less catastrophic because of women s involvement The multiple complexities of the Black Power movement become evident in reading these women s narratives against each other as well as against the sometimes strikingly different accounts of their male counterparts As Davis Shakur and Brown recount events in their lives they dispute mainstream assumptions about race class and gender and reveal how the Black Power struggle profoundly shaped their respective identities The Road to Somewhere: An American Memoir

A Memoir George Smith, 1902

Asian American Autobiographers Guiyou Huang, 2001-05-30 Asian Americans have made many significant contributions to industry, science, politics and the arts. At the same time they have made great sacrifices and endured enormous hardships. This reference examines autobiographies and memoirs written by Asian Americans in the twentieth century. Included are alphabetically arranged entries on 60 major autobiographers of Asian descent. Some of these such as Meena Alexander and Maxine Hong Kingston are known primarily for their writings; others such as Daniel K. Inouye are known largely for other achievements which they have chronicled in their autobiographies. Each entry is written by an expert contributor and provides a reliable account of the autobiographer's life, reviews major autobiographical works and themes including fictionalized autobiographies and autobiographical novels, presents a meticulously researched account of the critical reception of these works and closes with a bibliography of primary and secondary sources. An introductory essay considers the history and development of autobiography in American literature and culture and discusses issues and themes vital to Asian American autobiographies and memoirs such as family, diaspora, nationhood, identity, cultural assimilation, racial dynamics and the formation of the Asian American literary canon. The volume closes with a selected bibliography.
