Consequently, each essay functions as a standalone text that can easily complement other selected readings in writing or writing intensive courses across the disciplines at any level. Topics in Volume 1 of the series include academic writing, how to interpret writing assignments, motives for writing, rhetorical analysis, revision, invention, writing centers, argumentation, narrative, reflective writing, Wikipedia, patchwriting, collaboration, and genres.

The Oxford Handbook of Deaf Studies in Literacy Susan R. Easterbrooks, Hannah M. Dostal, 2021. The Oxford Handbook of Deaf Studies in Literacy brings together state-of-the-art research on literacy learning among deaf and hard-of-hearing learners (DHH). With contributions from experts in the field, this volume covers topics such as the importance of language and cognition, phonological or orthographic awareness, morphosyntactic and vocabulary understanding, reading comprehension, and classroom engagement with written language and learning among challenged populations. Avoiding sweeping generalizations about DHH readers that overlook varied experiences, this volume takes a nuanced approach, providing readers with the research to help DHH students gain competence in reading comprehension.

Rhetoric's Questions, Reading and Interpretation Peter Mack, 2017-08-20. This book aims to help readers interpret and reflect on their reading more effectively. It presents doctrines of ancient and renaissance rhetoric, an education in how to write well, as questions or categories for interpreting one's reading. The first chapter presents the questions. Later chapters use rhetorical theory to bring out the implications of and suggest possible answers to the questions about occasion and audience, chapter 2: structure and disposition, 3: narrative, 4: argument, 5: further elements of content such as descriptions, comparisons, proverbs, and moral axioms, dialogue and examples, 6: and style, 7. Chapter eight describes ways of gathering material, formulating arguments, and writing about the texts one reads. The conclusion considers the wider implications of taking a rhetorical approach to reading. The investigation of rhetoric's questions is interspersed with analyses of texts by Chaucer, Sidney, Shakespeare, Fielding, and Rushdie, using the questions. The text is intended for university students of literature, especially English literature and rhetoric, and their teachers.

The Rhetoric of Fiction Wayne C. Booth, 1983-02-15. A standard reference point in advanced discussions of how fictional form works, how authors make novels accessible, and how readers recreate texts. Its concepts and terms have become standard critical lexicon.

Teaching Students to Read Like Detectives Douglas Fisher, Nancy Frey, 2011-10-10. Prompt students to become the sophisticated readers, writers, and thinkers they need to be to achieve higher learning. The authors explore the important relationship between text, learner, and learning. With an array of methods and assignments to establish critical literacy in a discussion-based and reflective classroom, you'll encourage students to find meaning and cultivate thinking from even the most challenging expository texts.

Rebirth of Rhetoric Richard Andrews, 2012-05-16. Rebirth of Rhetoric brings together contributions from several fields to provide a forum in which a unifying theory for language and literature studies can be debated. The book does not aim to resurrect classical Renaissance rhetoric but to remake it within a contemporary context. The context of texts both spoken and written is one of the main emphases of this collection, whether it is the ideology informing the text or the way in which a text is transformed by its audience. The book also aims to present a range of practical approaches to the study of texts of all kinds: literary, televisual, film and photography. It also argues the case for developments in the Arts and Humanities which will bring together people working in Education, Linguistics, Composition, Literature and Cultural Studies.

Understanding Rhetoric Eamon M. Cunningham, 2020-01-01. Understanding Rhetoric: A Guide to Critical Reading and Argumentation is a composition textbook that outlines three essential skills: rhetoric, argument and source-based writing, geared towards newcomers and advanced students alike. Though comprehensive in its coverage, the book's focus is a simple one: how to move beyond a gut reaction while reading to an articulation of what is effective and what is not, while explicitly answering the most important question of Why. This text gets at this central concern in two fundamental ways. First, the text teaches composition as a cumulative process, coaching you how to question, challenge and expand on not just the readings you hold in your hands but also how to interrogate the internal processes of writing and thinking. The book's blend of composition methods detail the cross point of product and process to turn reading and writing from a matter of coming up with answers to questions to learning what type of questions need to be asked in the first place. The right questions, the text argues, are fundamentally rhetorical in nature. Second, the content of the practice-based chapters is framed into a larger mesh of intellectual history to show how the writing and thinking you are doing today is continuous with a long history of writing instruction that goes back to the ancient world. This book provides equal representation from classical and contemporary theory with the recognition that theory cannot be fully grasped without practice and practice cannot be fully understood without its theoretical antecedent. After all, you can't write outside the box until you know where the box is and what it looks like.

Postmodern Canadian Fiction and the Rhetoric of Authority Glenn Deer, 1994. Criticism that takes an ideological approach to Canadian writing is scarce; political rhetorical studies are even more uncommon. In this original approach to postwar Canadian fiction, Glenn Deer presents provocative readings of ideologies as well as experiments with authorial stances.

The Rhetoric of Literary Communication Virginie Iché, Sandrine Sorlin, 2022-01-31. Building on the notion of fiction as communicative act, this collection brings together an interdisciplinary range of scholars to examine the evolving relationship between authors and readers in fictional works from 18th-century English novels through to contemporary digital fiction. The book showcases a diverse range of contributions from scholars in stylistics, rhetoric, pragmatics and literary studies to offer new ways of looking at the author-reader channel, drawing on work from Roger Sell, Jean Jacques Lecercle and James Phelan. The volume traces the evolution of its form across historical periods, genres and media from its origins in the conversational mode of direct address in 18th-century English novels to the use of second person narratives in the 20th century through to 21st century digital fiction with its implicit requirement for reader participation The book engages in questions of how the author reader channel is shaped by different forms and how this continues to evolve in emerging contemporary genres and of shifting ethics of author and reader involvement This book will be of particular interest to students and scholars interested in the intersection of pragmatics stylistics and literary studies
