Self-authorship Marcia B. Baxter Magolda,1999 This book is intended to help college faculty create conditions in which students learn to construct knowledge in their disciplines and achieve self authorship A significant and often overlooked dimension mediating learning and self authorship centers on learners ways of knowing or their assumptions about the nature limits and certainty of knowledge A learner who assumes that all knowledge is certain expects to hear answers from an authority figure in contrast a learner who views knowledge as relative expects to explore multiple viewpoints By taking a constructive developmental approach the author demonstrates how students ability to construct knowledge is intertwined with the development of their assumptions about knowledge itself and their role in creating it She shows how the structure of constructive developmental teaching hinges on three principles validating students ability to know situating learning in students experience and defining learning as teachers and students mutually constructing meaning The book also takes abstract pedagogical principles and translates them into practical approaches Supporting English Learners in the Classroom Eric M. David Hester Amador,J. David Hester,1999-01-01 Rhetorical criticism promised to bring New Testament studies into a new era that approached the Bible as a document of persuasive discourse Major proponents of this approach suggested that its potential lies in its democratization of biblical interpretation To date that promise has never been fulfilled The reasons can be found by exploring the rhetoric of these rhetorical critics Such an exploration uncovers systems of disciplinary constraints and discursive habits that keep rhetoric firmly within traditional units of academic biblical interpretation The promise of rhetoric can only be fulfilled by shattering all notions of a rhetorical programme of biblical interpretation Handbook of Learning Disabilities, Second Edition H.
