20,000 Miles Christopher Fenwick,2017-11-07 If in 2017 a group of young men had decided to emulate this odyssey they would probably only have managed a part of the journey Conflict and bureaucracy would have barred their entry to many of the countries they tried to cross However in 1960 three young Cambridge graduates bought themselves an Austin A40 and set off on a marathon trip via Colombo to attend a friend s wedding in Cape Town They took the long way there Christopher Fenwick along with his friends Robin Gaunt and John Maclay set off across continents on the motoring adventure of their lives through Europe the Middle East Asia and Africa Their staple diet was Fray Bentos steak and kidney pie usually eaten at the roadside They even meet old schoolfriends along the way in Iran and had tea with Mr Nehru the Indian Prime Minister with his daughter Indira Gandhi and grandson Rajiv who were to follow in his footsteps Their loyal saloon car suffered the ravages of potholed roads and mountains but friendly mechanics always came to their rescue while the men soon became quite adept themselves at repairing and cannibalising the vehicle as it suffered various breakdowns en route Eventually they made it to Ceylon from where they embarked for the last leg of their trip by boat via the Yemen flying from there to Ethiopia and onwards through Africa to raise a glass of champagne in Cape Town

Being Protestant in Reformation Britain Alec Ryrie,2013-04-25 The Reformation was about ideas and power but it was also about real human lives Alec Ryrie provides the first comprehensive account of what it actually meant to live a Protestant life in England and Scotland between 1530 and 1640 drawing on a rich mixture of contemporary devotional works sermons diaries biographies and autobiographies to uncover the lived experience of early modern Protestantism Beginning from the surprisingly urgent multifaceted emotions of Protestantism Ryrie explores practices of prayer of family and public worship and of reading and writing tracking them through the life course from childhood through conversion and vocation to the deathbed He examines what Protestant piety drew from its Catholic predecessors and contemporaries and grounds that piety in material realities such as posture food and tears This perspective shows us what it meant to be Protestant in the British Reformations a meeting of intensity a religion which sought authentic feeling above all and which dreaded hypocrisy and hard heartedness with dynamism a progressive religion relentlessly pursuing sanctification and dreading idleness That combination for good or ill gave the Protestant experience its particular quality of restless creative zeal The Protestant devotional experience also shows us that this was a broad based religion for all the differences across time between two countries between men and women and between puritans and conformists this was recognisably a unified culture in which common experiences and practices cut across supposed divides Alec Ryrie shows us Protestantism not as the preachers on all sides imagined it but as it was really lived
