River Angel:

River Angel A. Manette Ansay, 2009-03-17 In April 1991 in a little Wisconsin town about a hundred miles southwest of the town where I grew up a misfit boy was kidnapped by a group of high school kids who later would testify they'd merely meant to frighten him to drive him around for a while. Somehow they ended up at the river whooping and hollering on a two lane bridge. Somehow the boy was shoved he jumped he slipped accounts vary into the icy water. The kids told police they never heard a splash one reported seeing a brilliant flash of light. Several people in the area witnessed a similar light while others recalled hearing something kind of like thunder. All night volunteers walked the river's edge but it was dawn before the body was found in a barn a good mile from the bridge. The owner of the barn had been the one to discover the body and she said the boy's cheeks were rosy his skin warm to the touch. A sweet smell hung in the air. It was she said as if he were just sleeping. And then she told police she believed an angel had carried him there. For years it had been said that an angel lived in the river. Residents flipped coins into the water for luck and a few claimed they had seen the angel or known someone who'd seen it. The historical society downtown had a farmwife's journal dated 1898 in which a woman described how an angel had rescued her family from a flood. Now as the story of the boy's death spread more people came forward with accounts of strange things that had happened on that night. Dogs had barked without ceasing till dawn livestock broke free of padlocked barns. Someone's child crayoned a bridge and above it a wide winged tapioca angel. A miracle. A hoax. Or something in between. With acute insight and great compassion A. Manette Ansay captures the inner life of a town and its residents struggling to forge a new identity in the face of a rapidly changing world.
