Catastrophic Thinking David Sepkoski, 2020-09-24 A history of scientific ideas about extinction that explains why we learned to value diversity as a precious resource at the same time as we learned to think catastrophically about extinction. We live in an age in which we are repeatedly reminded by scientists by the media by popular culture of the looming threat of mass extinction. We're told that human activity is currently producing a sixth mass extinction perhaps of even greater magnitude than the five previous geological catastrophes that drastically altered life on Earth. Indeed, there is a very real concern that the human species may itself be poised to go the way of the dinosaurs, victims of the most recent mass extinction some 65 million years ago. How we interpret the causes and consequences of extinction and their ensuing moral imperatives is deeply embedded in the cultural values of any given historical moment. And as David Sepkoski reveals, the history of scientific ideas about extinction over the past two hundred years, as both a past and a current process, is implicated in major changes in the way Western society has approached biological and cultural diversity. It seems self-evident to most of us that diverse ecosystems and societies are intrinsically valuable, but the current fascination with diversity is a relatively recent phenomenon. In fact, the way we value diversity depends crucially on our sense that it is precarious, that it is something actively threatened, and that its loss could have profound consequences. In Catastrophic Thinking, Sepkoski uncovers how and why we learned to value diversity as a precious resource at the same time as we learned to think catastrophically about extinction.

Ecocide Franz Brosch, 2002-09-20 We live in an age of ecocide. Changes of enormous ecological significance are occurring on our planet: the ozone layer is beginning to disintegrate. Since 1970, the world's forests have almost halved. A quarter of the world's fish have been depleted. 70% of biologists believe the world is now in the midst of the fastest mass extinction of species in the planet's 4.5 billion-year history. Biodiversity loss is rated as a more serious environmental problem than the depletion of the ozone layer, global warming, or pollution and contamination. How have we come to this, and what can be done to conserve our environment for the future? Ecocide examines the facts behind the figures to offer a disturbing account of the ecological impact that the human species has on the planet. It shows how we are wilfully destroying our world. Highlighting important countermovements who are working for ecological democracy, this unique book is essential for anyone who cares about conserving our environment for the future.

Encyclopedia of Environment and Society is a time capsule of its historic moment and a record of where we stand at the start of the 21st century making it a must have resource for any library These inspiring volumes provide an opportunity for more new ways of thinking behaving and living in a more than human world The Palynology and Micropalaeontology of Boundaries Alwynne Bowyer Beaudoin,Martin J. Head,2004 This volume explores geological boundaries in time and space using palynology and micropalaeontology Boundaries produce distinct signatures in the micropalaeontological record They can tell us much about the response of biotic systems to environmental change in both marine and terrestrial realms Different microfossil groups and geological contexts require their own approaches definitions and considerations of boundaries The papers here cover the methodology of boundary identification from biostratigraphical ecological and palaeoenvironmental perspectives Loss of Biodiversity Sharon L. Spray,Karen Leah McGlothlin,2003 Loss of Biodiversity introduces readers to the important concepts for understanding the environmental challenges and consequences of the declining diversity of life on the planet Contributions from scientists and academics in the social sciences and humanities provide readers with an initial tool kit for understanding the concepts central to their disciplinary perspective and the multi dimensional aspects of the loss of biodiversity Peoples, Nature and Environments Cristina Brito,Ana Cristina Roque,Cecilia Veracini,2019-12-03 This volume brings together perspectives from scholars of different scientific backgrounds endeavouring to understand and debate the interactions and relationships between humans nonhuman species and natural ecosystems in order to overcome the classic human environment dichotomy Through discussions informed by the humanities arts social and natural sciences the book deals with the way different disciplines approach this relationship These diverse perspectives are compared to enable a cross cutting analysis of human nature interface throughout history Changes forced by the utilization of resources and habitats as well as climate changes are analysed and discussed enhancing the importance of a multifaceted approach for a better understanding of the complexity of both the human world relationship and diverse interspecies connections and impacts Native Americans and the Environment Michael Eugene Harkin,David Rich Lewis,2007-01-01 Often cited as one of the most decisive campaigns in military history the Seven Days Battles were the first campaign in which Robert E Lee led the Army of Northern Virginia as well as the first in which Lee and Thomas Stonewall Jackson worked together Horseshoe Crabs and Velvet Worms Richard Fortey,2012-04-10 From one of the world s leading natural scientists and the acclaimed author of Trilobite Life A Natural History of Four Billion Years of Life on Earth and Dry Storeroom No 1 comes a fascinating chronicle of life s history told not through the fossil record but through the stories of organisms that have survived almost unchanged throughout time Evolution it seems has not completely obliterated its tracks as more advanced organisms have evolved the history of life on earth is far older and odder than many of us realize Scattered across the globe these remarkable plants and animals continue to mark seminal events in geological time From a moonlit beach in Delaware where the hardy horseshoe crab shuffles its way to a frenzy of mass mating just as it did 450 million years ago to the dense rainforests of New Zealand where the elusive unprepossessing velvet worm has burrowed deep into rotting timber since before the breakup of the ancient supercontinent to a stretch of Australian coastline with stromatolite formations that bear witness to the Precambrian dawn the existence of these survivors offers us a tantalizing glimpse of pivotal points in evolutionary history These are not living fossils but rather a handful of tenacious creatures of days long gone Written in buoyant sparkling prose Horseshoe Crabs and Velvet Worms is a marvelously captivating exploration of the world's old timers combining the very best of science writing with an explorer's sense of adventure and wonder
