Harmon,Dan Harmon,2001 Examines the life and adventures of American explorer Robert Peary focusing on his attempts to be the first man to reach the North Pole in the early twentieth century The Last Great Walk Wayne Curtis,2014-09-09 In 1909 Edward Payson Weston walked from New York to San Francisco covering around 40 miles a day and greeted by wildly cheering audiences in every city The New York Times called it the first bona fide walk across the American continent and eagerly chronicled a journey in which Weston was beset by fatigue mosquitos vicious headwinds and brutal heat He was 70 years old In The Last Great Walk journalist Wayne Curtis uses the framework of Weston s fascinating and surprising story and investigates exactly what we lost when we turned away from foot travel and what we could potentially regain with America s new embrace of pedestrianism From how our brains and legs evolved to accommodate our ancient traveling needs to the way that American cities have been designed to cater to cars and discourage pedestrians Curtis guides readers through an engaging intelligent exploration of how something as simple as the way we get from one place to another continues to shape our health our environment and even our national identity Not walking he argues may be one of the most radical things humans have ever done The Living Rock Arthur Wilson,1994 This book concentrates on the social and economic effects that metals have had on community life and on wider historical developments It gives a fascinating perspective proclaiming that the history of metals is the history of civilization basing the text on the results of archeometallurgists and materials scientists and looking at the advancement of societies as a direct result of their new found technology The author s clear and lucid style prevents the book becoming aridly academic while he maps the course of ancient history through to medieval times and beyond showing metal to be ultimately the key to history
