Robertson Davies's Cornish Trilogy Victor J. Lams, 2008 Robertson Davies's Cornish Trilogy A Reader's Guide is the first book length study of Davies's best work The Rebel Angels What's Bred in the Bone and The Lyre

The Serpent's Part David Lucking, 2003 Canada is a country in which the issue of identity has always been a prominent concern and one that has frequently been explored in the literature of that nation The theme of identity often merges into that of language the forging of names and the elaboration of narratives being perceived as means through which identity is constructed in both the private and the public spheres This study examines the relation between identity and language as this is evidenced in a number of works of Canadian literature ranging from Susanna Moodie's Roughing It in the Bush to Timothy Findley's Famous Last Words Particular attention is dedicated to the telling of stories in these books both as an existential strategy on the part of particular authors or the characters they create and as an explicitly thematized concern It is argued that while the works under discussion dramatize the paradoxes and the perils inherent in the endeavour to construct the self by narrative means they also insist on the primacy of narrative in imparting a coherent pattern to experience and on the centrality of the role it plays in humanity's quest for meaning

A Native Heritage Leslie Monkman, 1981-12-15 Disparity and division in religion technology and ideology have characterized relations between English Canadian and Indian cultures through out Canada's history From the earliest declaration of white territorial ownership to the current debate on aboriginal rights red man and white man have had opposing principles and perspectives The most common solutions imposed on these conflicts by white men have relegated the Indian to the fringes of white society and consciousness This survey of English Canadian literature is the first comprehensive examination of a tradition in which white writers turn to the Indian and his culture for standards and models by which they can measure their own values and goals for patterns of cultural destruction transformation and survival and for sources of native heroes and indigenous myths Leslie Monkman examines images of the Indian as they appear in works ranging from Robert Rogers Ponteach or The Savages of America 1766 to Robertson Davies Pontiac and the Green Man 1977 demonstrating how English Canadian writers have illuminated their own world through reference to Indian culture The Indian has been seen as an antagonist as a superior alternative as a member of a vanishing and lamented race and as a hero and the source of the new myths Although white Indian tension often lies in apparently irreconcilable opposites Monkman finds in the literature surveyed complementary images reflecting a common humanity This is an important contribution to a hitherto unexplored area of Canadian literature in English which should give rise to further elaboration of this major theme
