Iron Age and Roman Coin Hoards in Britain Roger Bland, Adrian Chadwick, Colin Haselgrove, David Mattingly, 2020-06-30 More coin hoards have been recorded from Roman Britain than from any other province of the Empire This comprehensive and lavishly illustrated volume provides a survey of over 3260 hoards of Iron Age and Roman coins found in England and Wales with a detailed analysis and discussion Theories of hoarding and deposition and examined national and regional patterns in the landscape settings of coin hoards presented together with an analysis of those hoards whose findspots were surveyed and of those hoards found in archaeological excavations It also includes an unprecedented examination of the containers in which coin hoards were buried and the objects found with them The patterns of hoarding in Britain from the late 2nd century BC to the 5th century AD are discussed

The volume also provides a survey of Britain in the 3rd century AD as a peak of over 700 hoards are known from the period from AD 253-296. This has been a particular focus of the project which has been a collaborative research venture between the University of Leicester and the British Museum funded by the AHRC. The aim has been to understand the reasons behind the burial and non-recovery of these finds. A comprehensive online database <https://finds.org.uk/database/> underpins the project which also undertook a comprehensive GIS analysis of all the hoards and field surveys of a sample of them. From Present to Past Through Landscape Almudena Orejas Saco del Valle, David Mattingly, Monique Clavel-Lévêque, 2009-01-12. In 1817 a group of East Yorkshire gentry opened barrows in a large Iron Age cemetery on the Yorkshire Wolds at Arras near Market Weighton including a remarkable burial accompanied by a chariot with two horses which became known as the King's Barrow. This was the third season of excavation undertaken there producing spectacular finds including a further chariot burial and the so-called Queen's barrow which contained a gold ring, many glass beads and other items. These and later discoveries would lead to the naming of the Arras Culture and the suggestion of connections with the near

European continent Since then further remarkable finds have been made in the East Yorkshire region including 23 chariot burials most recently at Pocklington in 2017 and 2018 where both graves contained horses and were featured on BBC 4's Digging for Britain series This volume brings together papers presented by leading experts at the Royal Archaeological Institute Annual Conference held at the Yorkshire Museum York in November 2017 to celebrate the bicentenary of the Arras discoveries The remarkable Iron Age archaeology of eastern Yorkshire is set into wider context by views from Scotland the south of England and Iron Age Western Europe The book covers a wide variety of topics including migration settlement and landscape burials experimental chariot building finds of various kinds and reports on the major sites such as Wetwang Garton Slack and Pocklington

Romano-British Settlement and Cemeteries at Mucking Sam Lucy, Christopher Evans, 2016-11-30 Excavations at Mucking Essex between 1965 and 1978 revealed extensive evidence for a multiphase rural Romano-British settlement perhaps an estate center and five associated cemetery areas 170 burials with different burial areas reserved for different groups within the settlement The settlement demonstrated clear continuity from the preceding Iron Age occupation with unbroken sequences of artefacts and enclosures through the first century AD followed by rapid and extensive remodeling which included the laying out of a Central Enclosure and an organized water supply with wells accompanied by the start of large scale pottery production After the mid second century AD the Central Enclosure was largely abandoned and settlement shifted its focus more to the Southern Enclosure system with a gradual decline through the 3rd and 4th centuries although continued burial pottery and artefactual deposition indicate that a form of settlement continued possibly with some low level pottery production Some of the latest Roman pottery was strongly associated with the earliest Anglo-Saxon style pottery suggesting the existence of a terminal Roman settlement phase that essentially involved an Anglo-Saxon community Given recent revisions of the chronology for the early Anglo-Saxon period this casts an intriguing light on the transition with radical implications for understandings of this period Each of the cemetery areas was in use for a considerable length of time Taken as a whole Mucking was very much a component place complex it was its respective parts that fostered its many cemeteries whose diverse rites reflect the variability and roles of the settlement's evidently varied inhabitants

The Bioarchaeology of Urbanization Tracy K. Betsinger, Sharon N. DeWitte, 2020-11-05 Urbanization has long been a focus of bioarchaeological research but what is missing from the literature is an exploration of the geographic and temporal range of human biological demographic and sociocultural responses to this major shift in settlement pattern Urbanization is characterized by increased population size and density and is frequently assumed to produce negative biological effects However the relationship between urbanization and human health requires careful examination given the heterogeneity that exists within and between urban contexts Studies of contemporary urbanization have found both positive and negative outcomes which likely have parallels in past human societies This volume is unique as there is no current bioarchaeological book addressing urbanization despite various studies of urbanization having been conducted Collectively this volume provides a more holistic understanding of the relationships between urbanization and various aspects of human population health The insight gained from this volume will provide not only a better understanding of urbanization in our past but it will also have potential implications for those studying urbanization in contemporary communities

Action as History Stein Helgeby,2004 R G Collingwood s philosophy of history reflected his historical practices and his moral philosophy Reflection on historical practice provided him with a theory of knowledge his moral philosophy provided him with a theory of the object of history This study shows how Collingwood s concepts of action and history developed together

The Routledge Handbook of the Bioarchaeology of Human Conflict Christopher Knüsel,Martin Smith,2013-12-17 If human burials were our only window onto the past what story would they tell Skeletal injuries constitute the most direct and unambiguous evidence for violence in the past Whereas weapons or defenses may simply be statements of prestige or status and written sources are characteristically biased and incomplete human remains offer clear and unequivocal evidence of physical aggression reaching as far back as we have burials to examine Warfare is often described as senseless and as having no place in society Consequently its place in social relations and societal change remains obscure The studies in The Routledge Handbook of the Bioarchaeology of Human Conflict present an overview of the nature and development of human conflict from prehistory to recent times as evidenced by the remains of past people themselves in order to explore the social contexts in which such injuries were inflicted A broadly chronological approach is taken from prehistory through to recent conflicts however this book is not simply a catalogue of injuries illustrating weapon development or a narrative detailing progress in warfare but rather provides a framework in which to explore both continuity and change based on a range of important themes which hold continuing relevance throughout human development
