Text Society, 1949 Romance and the Gentry in Late Medieval England Michael Johnston, 2014-06-19 Romance and the Gentry in Late Medieval England offers a new history of Middle English romance the most popular genre of secular literature in the English Middle Ages Michael Johnston argues that many of the romances composed in England from 1350 1500 arose in response to the specific socio economic concerns of the gentry the class of English landowners who lacked titles of nobility and hence occupied the lower rungs of the aristocracy The end of the fourteenth century in England witnessed power devolving to the gentry who became one of the dominant political and economic forces in provincial society As Johnston demonstrates this social change also affected England's literary culture particularly the composition and readership of romance Romance and the Gentry in Late Medieval England identifies a series of new topoi in Middle English that responded to the gentry's economic interests But beyond social history and literary criticism it also speaks to manuscript studies showing that most of the codices of the gentry romances were produced by those in the immediate employ of the gentry By bringing together literary criticism and manuscript studies this book speaks to two scholarly communities often insulated from one another it invites manuscript scholars to pay closer attention to the cultural resonances of the texts within medieval codices simultaneously it encourages literary scholars to be more attentive to the cultural resonances of surviving medieval codices

Sir Degrevant L. F. Casson, 1949 The Romance of Sir Degrevant L. F. Casson, 1949 The Romance of Emaré Emare, 1907 Medieval Insular Romance Judith Elizabeth Weiss, Jennifer Fellows, Morgan Dickson, 2000 Major themes explored are narratives of the disguised prince and the reinvention of stories for different tastes and periods These studies cover a wide chronological range and familiar and unfamiliar texts and topics The disguised prince is a theme linking several articles from early Anglo Norman romances through later English ones like King Edward and the Shepherd to a late 16th century recasting of the Havelok story as a Tudor celebration of Gloriana Translation in its widest sense the way romance can reinvent stories for different tastes and periods is another running theme the opening introductory article considers the topic of translation theoretically concerned to stimulate further research on how insular romances were transferred between vernaculars and literary systems while other essays consider Lovelich's Merlin a poem translating its Arthurian material to the poet's contemporary London milieu Chaucer and Breton lays in England Contributors JUDITH WEISS IVANA DJORDJEVIC ROSALIND FIELD MORGAN DICKSON ELIZABETH ARCHIBALD AMANDA HOPKINS ARLYN DIAMOND PAUL PRICE W A DAVENPORT RACHEL SNELL ROGER DALRYMPLE HELEN COOPER Selected studies Romance in Medieval England conference The Romance of Emaré Edith Rickert, 1907 A Companion to Medieval Popular Romance Raluca L. Radulescu, Cory James Rushton, 2009 Popular romance was one of the most wide spread forms of literature in the Middle Ages yet despite its cultural centrality and its fundamental importance for later literary developments the genre has defied precise definition its subject matter ranging from tales of chivalric adventure to saintly women and monsters that become human The essays in this collection provide contexts definitions and explanations for the genre

particularly in an English context Topics covered include genre and literary classification race and ethnicity gender orality and performance the romance and young readers metre and form printing culture and reception
