with such overwhelming experiences Beyond the Innocence of Childhood is a collection of forty chapters which are divided into three separate volumes The overall purpose of this series is to answer the question How do we as educators clinicians other professionals and parents help children and adolescents deal with threat to their lives dying death and bereavement In this three volume set the editors have brought together a number of well known educators researchers and practitioners who share their knowledge and expertise concerning the care and well being of children and adolescents SPECIFIC TO VOLUME 1 Children explore the world around them through spontaneous and later structured learning acquire knowledge learn to understand themselves establish their role in the family develop peer and adult relationships and find their place in the world However today s society does not include death as part of this developmental process Unfortunately such avoidance may negatively influence children s ability to acquire an understanding of the concepts of death and to develop positive attitudes toward death Highlights of this section include Answering children s questions Children and death past present and future Gender differences Teachable moments Perceptions of death cognitive development and children s artwork The second part of volume 1 examines influences in today s society that potentially impact on children and adolescents perceptions and attitudes toward life threatening illness and death This volume offers readers valuable insights into the various factors which ultimately affect children s ability to achieve a mature understanding of death Features include the following Violent death in a popular culture and the media Political conflict and war The epidemic of AIDS Cultural differences in the management of life threatening illness Death rituals and funeral ceremonies

P. Grünewald, Simone Fulda, 2016-04-05 Recent advances in the understanding of the biological basis of pediatric soft tissue and bone tumors especially owing to the advent of omics technologies have led to an exponential increase in the current knowledge on the genetic and cellular patho mechanisms that drive these diseases This offers the unprecedented opportunity to develop and implement targeted therapies such as monoclonal antibodies small molecules oncolytic viruses and immunotherapies in standard and or personalized treatment regimens However to date only a few examples document a successful translation of discoveries from the bench to the bedside Recent international expert congresses further emphasize the urgent need for a more rapid and especially more successful translational process Hence we strongly believe that a Frontiers Research Topic aiming at this aspect would fit just in time and be relevant for a broad readership This Frontiers Research Topic intended to provide a platform for active and interdisciplinary discussion to summarize current state of the art knowledge on all basic research and translational aspects in pediatric soft tissue and bone tumors and to offer new perspectives on how to further promote and accelerate the translational process It comprises high quality original articles and timely reviews Psychosocial Aspects of Pediatric Oncology Shulamith Kreitler, Myriam Weyl Ben Arush, 2004-05-31 Publisher description Tumor-Associated Antigens Olivier Gires, Barbara Seliger, 2009-02-11 The first comprehensive and most recent overview of the topic this ready reference and handbook reviews current knowledge of TAAs their subclasses and pinpoints their application areas in medicine In addition it emphasizes target identification procedures the need for an accurate and thorough analysis of the function of TAAs and the validation of those in clinical settings The whole is rounded off with an overview of currently approved therapeutic antibodies The result is a must have for biologists and oncologists in science clinics and industry

Making Better Drugs for Children with Cancer National Research Council, Institute of Medicine, National Cancer Policy Board, Committee on Shortening the Time Line for New Cancer Treatments, 2005-05-01

The successes that have been achieved in treating childhood cancers stand as beacons against the less dramatic improvements for adults with cancer Progress began to accelerate in the 1960s and 1970s as treatment regimens were built up primarily by building combinations of chemotherapeutic drugs However the near absence of research in pediatric cancer drug discovery threatens to halt the progress in childhood cancer treatment achieved during the past four decades Making Better Drugs for Children with Cancer identifies the major issues to be addressed in developing new agents for childhood cancers the gaps in research and development and the steps that have been suggested to move the process forward This report also makes a new proposal to capitalize on today's science to bring new treatments to children's cancers
