Schamp,2019-06-04 Originally published in 2005 This book examines how regional industries use different networks on various geographical scales in order to withstand increasing competition in a globalising world It argues that new forms of global governance of networked industries are emerging in particular in those areas that have only recently been incorporated into the global economy such as Eastern Europe Asia and Southern Africa The book addresses a number of issues including the different forms of institutional arrangements that contribute to the formation of heterogeneous global industrial networks It also raises the issue of national institutions that still matter in network formation The focus of the book is on how to improve regional and sectoral competitiveness in a global context and it suggests this is best achieved by a close analysis of global linkages an evolutionary perspective on processes taking place and a more differentiated view on globalisation Feminist Thought, Student Economy Edition Rosemarie Tong,2018-10-03 This book provides a clear comprehensive and incisive introduction to the major traditions of feminist theory from liberal feminism radical feminism and Marxist and socialist feminism to care focused feminism psychoanalytic feminism women of color feminisms and ecofeminism The Official Railway Guide ,1893 Cyclopedia of Law and Procedure ,1908 Making Place Stephan Feuchtwang,2004 To make a place is to create a location where its creators can feel they belong Processes of place making are still very much ongoing today Geographers sociologists political scientists and philosophers of advanced capitalism have said that place is a localisation of the global However the creation of a place is not legible from such grand perspectives It is also much more creative than can be predicted by translating large scale processes into local cultures Anthropologists have been sensitive to the intimate tragic and lyrical senses of local place But their theorising has been too much bound up with cosmology and insufficiently with the intermediate scales of state and local state In this book Stephan Feuchtwang and his contributors offer a set of historical anthropological and scale mediated studies from China a country that includes a subcontinental variety of cultures and landscapes In the twentieth century it experienced collapse in civil war and was then reasserted as a particularly strong state Now it is managing the fastest growing capitalist economy in the world These intriguing Chinese studies contribute to the anthropology of place and space providing an historical perspective on processes of change and of accommodation to disruption The stories they tell are fascinating in their own right but in addition the result is a critical reformulation of previous theories of place that geographers philosophers historians and anthropologists will find of great interest
