Making Reform Work Robert Zemsky, 2009-08-11 Making Reform Work is a practical narrative of ideas that begins by describing who is saying what about American higher education who s angry who s disappointed and why Most of the pleas for changing American colleges and universities that originate outside the academy are lamentations on a small number of too often repeated themes The critique from within the academy focuses on issues principally involving money and the power of the market to change colleges and universities Sandwiched between these perspectives is a public that still has faith in an enterprise that it really doesn't understand Robert Zemsky one of a select group of scholars who participated in Secretary of Education Margaret Spellings's 2005 Commission on the Future of Higher Education signed off on the commission's report with reluctance In Making Reform Work he presents the ideas he believes should have come from that group to forge a practical agenda for change Zemsky argues that improving higher education will require enlisting faculty leadership on the one hand and on the other a strategy for changing the higher education system writ large Directing his attention from what can't be done to what can be done Zemsky provides numerous suggestions These include a renewed effort to help students performance in high schools and a stronger focus on the science of active learning not just teaching methods He concludes by suggesting a series of dislodging events for example making a three year baccalaureate the standard undergraduate degree congressional rethinking of student aid in the wake of the loan scandal and a change in the rules governing endowments that could break the gridlock that today holds higher education reform captive Making Reform Work offers three rules for successful college and university transformation don't vilify don't play games and come to the table with a well thought out strategy rather than a sharply worded lamentation

Designs for Science Literacy American Association for the Advancement of Science, 2001-03-22

The call for science curriculum reform has been made over and over again for much of the twentieth century Arguments have been made that the content of the curriculum is not appropriate for meeting the individual and social needs of people living in the modern world that the curriculum has become overstuffed with topics and does not serve students especially well and above all that the curriculum does not generate the student learning it is expected to produce The latest volume in a continuing series of publications from the AAAS designed to reform science education Designs for Science Literacy presupposes that curriculum reform must be considerably more extensive and fundamental than the tinkering with individual courses and subjects that has been going on for decades Designs deals with the critical issues involved in assembling sound instructional materials into a new coherent K 12 whole The book pays special attention to the need to link science oriented studies to the arts and humanities and also proposes how to align the curriculum with an established set of learning goals while preserving the American tradition of local responsibility for the curriculum itself If fundamental curriculum reform is ever to occur a new process for creating alternatives will have to be developed Designs for Science Literacy provides the groundwork for such a process International Handbook of Jewish Education Helena Miller, Lisa D. Grant, Alex Pomson, 2011-04-02 The International Handbook of Jewish Education a two volume publication brings together scholars and practitioners engaged in the field of Jewish Education and its cognate fields world wide Their submissions make a significant contribution to our knowledge of the field of Jewish Education as we start the second decade of the 21st century The Handbook is divided broadly into four main sections Vision and Practice focusing on issues of philosophy identity and planning the big issues of Jewish Education Teaching and Learning focusing on areas of curriculum and engagement Applications focusing on the ways that Jewish Education is transmitted in particular contexts both formal and informal for children and adults Geographical focusing on historical demographic social and other issues that are specific to a region or where an issue or range of issues can be compared and contrasted between two or more locations This comprehensive collection of articles providing high quality content constitutes a definitive statement on the state of Jewish Education world wide as well as through a wide variety of lenses and contexts It is written in a style that is accessible to a global community of academics and professionals Creating and Sustaining Small Learning Communities Grace Sammon, 2008 CD ROM contains 33 planning templates data collection and assessment tools frequently asked questions Making Connections Marilyn Naidoo, 2021-11-19 Because of the disconnect within the curriculum and the lack of contextual relevance African theological education is still searching for appropriate approaches to ministerial training Integrative theological education refers to systematic attempts to connect major learning experiences appropriate to the education and formation of ministers It is seen as a solution to connect and transform ministry training The main premise of this book is that the key to enhancing theological education is the intentional integration of knowing with being and doing of theory with practice and of theology with life and ministry In this way all aspects of student learning are brought together holistically highlighting an educational strategy that is concerned with connections in human experience thereby supporting student learning Making Connections offers the opportunity to consider integration as an appropriate pedagogical approach to create the correct balance in making education more meaningful and fulfilling for the African revealing humanising education grounded in African philosophy and worldview Handbook of Special Education James M. Kauffman, Daniel P. Hallahan, Paige Cullen Pullen, 2017-05-25 The purpose of the Handbook of Special Education is to help profile and bring greater clarity to the already sprawling and continuously expanding field of special education To ensure consistency across the volume chapter authors review and integrate existing research identify strengths and weaknesses note gaps in the literature and discuss implications for practice and future research The second edition has been fully updated throughout to take into account recent changes to federal laws as well as the most current academic research and an entirely new section has been added on research methods in special education      Cyber Security Intelligence and Analytics Zheng Xu,Reza M.
