The Making of a Physician Harry L. Graber M.D. F.A.C.C., 2016-06-29 Both genetic and environmental factors play important roles in one's life Genetics remains a fixed entity whereas environment is a variable Environmental experiences in life can have a positive or negative influence upon the genetic makeup of a given individual Decision making in the preschool environment is predominantly controlled by parents Eventually the individual being influenced by the many past environmental factors becomes the responsible choice maker as to which path in life he/she wishes to travel It is my belief that it is providential that one is given these experiences to aid in our decision making This concept was supported by five of the physicians who shared their stories chapter 10 All were greatly influenced by role models whom they encountered in their earlier life This influence factor is not a single event but a continuum This forms the basis of the concept that the making of a physician is not a one time event but represents a continuum For some of us becoming a physician was understood as a calling The stories in this book were shared so that others may develop a greater appreciation of their own environmental experiences and consider them as influential factors in the decision making of their lives It is also my hope that this book might be of positive help to the young person considering the medical profession as his or her vocation history of patients seeking relief from suffering at the end of life and discusses how cultural and professional customs have inhibited many doctors from helping their patients at the end Preston shows how most doctors fail their patients by not discussing dying with them and by refusing to consider legal physician aid in dying ultimately deceiving the public in their refusal to help patients die He discusses the religious political and legal battles in this part of the culture war and gives advice to patients on how to gain peaceful dying Preston presents a strong argument for why every citizen who is dying ought to be extended an inalienable right to die peacefully and why every physician has an ethical obligation to assist patients who want to exercise this right safely securely and painlessly
