Ward, 1988-09-01 Do you wonder what goes on inside a church, a temple or a mosque? Do you find it strange that some of your friends worship on Saturday and others on Sunday? Why are young Buddhist's heads shaved? What do you suppose is meant by speaking in tongues? Worshipers tread many different paths in their search for peace, love and eternal happiness. This book will tell you about the most familiar paths or faiths and about some of the lesser known faiths too.

Religion and the Rise of Sport in England Hugh McLeod, 2022 Both religion and sport can inspire great loyalty and shape identities. Minority Reports Mark Klitsie, 2016-06-03 The stuff that comes after modernism isn't all bad. Postmodernism not needing everything to be buttoned up can leave things dangling; it can pay attention to the obscure, marginal and particular. The postmodern dynamic invites one to revisit biblical texts that do not fit into tidy, cherished theological constructs. I call these texts the minority reports. Popular theology infers that God is just pretending when he changes his mind or gets frustrated, saddened and affected by humans; this understanding is guided by concepts of God's omni attributes. But these wise and well intentioned concepts fail to portray a God who will not be domesticated. Certain biblical narratives trace YHWH's hiddenness, suffering, changeability and hostility; this awkward shadow side of YHWH is sometimes selectively overlooked. The fear of God is gone. Instead we have the ever tolerant universal God who is in danger of evaporating into spirit, light and love. As a theologian I use Hebrew block logic: competing truths in the Bible are kept intact; synthesis isn't necessarily sought. God chooses us and we choose God. God is self-sufficient, all powerful and all knowing, needing no creature. Yet he chooses to limit his omniness in the human arena and makes himself vulnerable to humans. He hyphenates his name with Abraham, Isaac, Jacob and the church at a risk.

Uttering the Unutterable Louis F. Groarke, 2023-01-15 Literature utters the unutterable not through logic, not through science, not through argument but through a pitch of eloquence so pronounced the conscientious reader cannot fail to pay attention. Louis Groarke argues that literature is an honorific term we use to describe texts that are so overpowering they lift us to an encounter with an ineffable ultimate that is beyond logical or scientific explanation. In Uttering the Unutterable he proposes a wisdom epistemology that identifies an experience of transcendence as the defining criterion of literature. Offering four mutually reinforcing definitions of literature in line with Aristotle's theory of four causes, Groarke compares the experience of reading to Aristotle's account of philosophical contemplation and maintains that literature has inevitable ethical content. Moving beyond the Aristotelianism of the late Chicago School, Groarke presents a new synthesis that breaks through essentialist stereotypes and contends that literature like religion points to an ineffable transcendence to something beyond what we can adequately explain, prove, systematize, quantify, or enclose in a theory. Uttering the Unutterable explores how Aristotelian philosophy provides the most complete and compelling account of literature for philosophers, literary critics, and theorists.

Johnson, 1851 The Word in the World Candy Gunther Brown, 2004

The evangelical publishing community has been growing for more than two hundred years.
